Korea Medics Report Whole Blood Shortage

Chaplains In Japan Ask Congregations To Make Donations

TOKYO, Monday, June 1 (AP)—Medics in Korea have almost run out of whole blood to give wounded United Nations soldiers and may not have enough supplies if heavy fighting continues, Army authorities said Sunday.

The situation was declared so critical that U. S. Army chaplains in Japan were routed from bed just after midnight Saturday and asked to appeal to their congregations for blood donations after Sunday morning services.

The emergency was caused by the sudden increase in fighting on the Western and Central Fronts last week. A laboratory technician who returned from Korea Sunday said Allied hospitals were "almost out" of blood.

Replacement Blood Needed

An Eighth Army spokesman in Korea said every man wounded in the intense fighting the past few days got all the blood he needed, but said new blood is needed to replace that used up.

The Protestant chaplain at Tokyo Chapel Center, in a sermon broadcast throughout Japan, went further and said there was no blood left to treat wounded soldiers.

Capt. Ted Grisot of Texarkana, Tex., commanding officer of the Far East Command blood bank, said all hospitals in Korea "still have some whole blood on hand, but are 'running pretty short.'"

Next Shipment Awaited

Grisot co-ordinates shipments of blood from the United States. He asks for increased shipments when the fighting gets heavy, but it takes seven days for the new supplies to reach Korea from the U. S.

He said the emergency appeal was necessary to make up the shortage until the next shipment arrives from the U. S.

About 50 Americans—mostly civilians—in Tokyo responded to the call made by the chaplains this morning.

Holiday Deaths Below Estimate

(By The Associated Press)

Millions of motorists began driving homeward Sunday night, and most apparently were heeding the advice of the National Safety Council to take it slow.

For the death toll from automobile mishaps thus far for the Memorial Day weekend from 6 p.m. Friday through 7:30 Sunday night local time stood at 169, just 71 below the council's estimated road death toll.

The total holiday death toll stood at 261, with drownings accounting for 54 and miscellaneous causes 88. The drowning toll was high and expected to mount even higher. The high temperatures which were pretty general throughout the nation on this last Sunday in May drew millions to beaches.

Ned H. Dearborn, council president, had cautioned homeward bound drivers: "A little extra care, courtesy and common sense in the next few hours could save the lives of 100 people on the highways. One of these lives might be yours. Think it over. Do your part."

South Koreans Repel Furious Enemy Attack

Outnumbered ROKs Fight Hand To Hand With Thousand Reds

SEOUL, Monday, June 1 (AP)—Rain-soaked South Korean soldiers fought hand to hand with 1,000 Chinese Communists on the Central Front Sunday and hammered the Reds back out of Allied lines with heavy losses.

The U. S. Eighth Army said 323 Chinese were killed or wounded in the unsuccessful attacks on Capitol Hill and another main line Allied position just east of it. Allied losses were not given.

ROKs Outnumbered

The Reds hurled a battalion (800 men) at the veteran South Korean Capitol Division holding the hill named in its honor. A reinforced company of 200 Reds attacked the adjoining main line position.

The attack at midnight reached close range after two hours and raged for another hour with bayonets, knives, rifle clubs and bare fists on the crest of an outpost hill. Although outnumbered, the South Koreans broke the back of the Chinese attackers and then drove them off with the aid of mortar and artillery fire, an Eighth Army spokesman said.

Rain Curtails Air Action

Action elsewhere along the front was confined to two light Red jabs near Pork Chop Hill on the Western Front and a dozen patrol contacts. Rain falling throughout the day seriously curtailed but did not halt Allied air attacks.

The Fifth Air Force said 34 fighter-bombers dumped tons of explosives on five heavily bombed outposts captured by the Chinese earlier in the week. Carson, Elko and Vegas hills on the Western Front and two other positions on Finger Ridge along the Central Front were hit repeatedly.

U. S. Eases Up On Czechoslovakia

WASHINGTON, May 31 (INS)—The U. S. moved to improve relations with Czechoslovakia today by easing trade and travel restrictions clamped on the Red satellite after the failing of American Newsman William Oatis.

Informed sources said actions, taken since Oatis' release two weeks ago, stem from President Eisenhower's personal appeal to the Czechs for better relations between the two countries. "Other political steps" in line with the President's statement are reported under study.

Persons acquainted with the situation said the State Department has already:

1. Lifted the ban on the issuance of consular invoices at Prague which clears the way for the Czechs to export goods to the U. S.
2. Instructed the Commerce Department to approve licenses for the exports of non-strategic American goods to the Iron Curtain country.

3. Decided to allow American citizens to travel once again in Czechoslovakia. But, anyone applying for a visa will be expected to "put up a convincing argument and state a legitimate reason" for making the trip.
4. Begun discussions with Britain and France over the possibility of allowing Czech passenger planes to resume flights over Germany.

Gob's Mom-In-Law Spirits Away His Heiress Bride

BOSTON, May 31 (INS)—A West Virginia mother-in-law raided the love nest of a young Navy radio man today and made off with his teenage heiress bride of three months.

Radio Seaman Charles Neal, 19, Bluefield, W. Va., appealed to police for help after beautiful Betty Lou had been taken from his side in an East Boston rooming house. But police pointed out they were helpless since Betty Lou willingly drove back to the family's Bluefield home with her wealthy mother, Mrs. Annie Owen.

Neal explained he had gone to a lot of trouble to bring his wife to Boston when his ship, the AKA-5, docked a few days ago.

Since he didn't have enough money to go to West Virginia, his shipmates in the attack transport

Electric Sparks Shower Wrecked Train; 50 Injured

SUPERIOR, Mont., May 31 (AP)—Lightning-like flashes from high voltage trolley lines sizzled around the wreckage early today after five rear cars of an electric train jumped the rails, injuring 50 persons.

The showering sparks set fire to a wooden bridge, touching off flames that enveloped two cars of the Milwaukee Railroad's Olympia Hiawatha, a 10-car train bound from Seattle to Chicago. All passengers had left before the flames billowed around the cars.

Hospital attaches at Superior said "we have seen approximately 50 people with from minor to moderately serious injuries." They said the names of the injured would be made available later. They said none was critically hurt.

Atomically-Generated Electricity Is Planned

ST. LOUIS, May 31 (INS)—Plans for a 60-million-dollar plant to make electricity by atomic power have been announced by the Monsanto Chemical Co., and the Union Electric Co., in St. Louis.

Philip N. Powers, executive administrator for a joint project of the two companies, said today that arrangements have been completed to propose construction of such a plant.

He said atomically-produced electricity could compete commercially with power generated by coal-burning machinery.

Tenant Farmer Dies In Lightning-Set Fire

WATERLOO, Md., May 31 (AP)—A 49-year-old tenant farmer died in his flaming house today when lightning struck the frame building and burned it to the ground in a matter of minutes.

The dead man, identified as James M. Harding Jr., Negro, who worked the farm of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence M. Turner here, was carried out of the blazing building on a couch where he apparently had died in his sleep.

Firemen from Savage and Jessup forced their way into the flames to get the man and escaped seconds before the building collapsed.

W. Berlin Police Vanish

BERLIN, May 31 (AP)—Two West Berlin police on night patrol duty disappeared in a Russian zone border area and authorities expressed belief today they had been seized by Communist guards.

In the same area, a East zone policeman crossed into the West yesterday and announced himself a deserter.

Eisenhower May Take Taft, Martin To Big 3 Meeting

WASHINGTON, May 31 (AP)—President Eisenhower may consider taking Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) and House Speaker Martin (R-Mass) to the Big Three meeting in Bermuda in an effort to close gaps between the U. S. and its allies.

Sen. Wiley (R-Wis) has suggested that congressional leaders be invited to the conference as observers to give them the "feel" of conditions which have resulted in open differences of free world opinion on some vital issues.

Eke's Remark Recalled

While Wiley said he has had no White House response to the suggestion, some lawmakers thought Eisenhower seemed to have such a course in mind when he said Thursday he would be delighted to take along anyone who wants to know what is going on day by day.

Some of Eisenhower's friends believe the possible presence of Taft and Martin at the conference, even as only observers, would lend weight to the Republicans' contention that their leaders are working as a team.

In any such instance, Taft would represent a faction in Congress that doesn't always see eye to eye with the President on foreign policy. But if the Ohio senator and Martin agreed on the spot with decisions made at Bermuda, Eisenhower would have reasonable assurance that Congress would approve.

Hall Says Unity Achieved

GOP National Chairman Leonard W. Hall of New York said on a radio program that Eisenhower has achieved unity with Taft and Martin.

"I think it is wonderful to see the President today working hand in hand with Bob Taft in the Senate and Joe Martin in the House," Hall said. "That is real Republican unity."

Recent differences between Eisenhower and Taft over American policy, if true negotiations fail in Korea, emphasize some of the difficulties facing the President in putting his ideas across in Congress.

Gov. McKeldin Inclined To Run For Reelection

BALTIMORE, May 31 (AP)—Gov. McKeldin said today his present "inclination" is to run for reelection.

He also reiterated that he is not unalterably opposed to capital punishment.

And he broke a long silence on the route for the proposed Baltimore tunnel by saying he favors a Canton-Fairfield route.

The Governor has never said specifically that he would seek another term and try to succeed where other Republican governors have failed—that is, to serve two terms.

His comment today was in answer to a question by newsmen on a television press conference.

The governor said that as in the past, he won't definitely make up his mind until the time comes for filing next spring. But he added that his present feeling is that he probably will try for another term in the state house. He indicated his position was subject to change with the political situation at the time.

McKeldin also said he did not anticipate that there would be a contest in the Republican gubernatorial primary election.

Sees GOP Squabble Settled

Friends of the governor for months have predicted he will run again but McKeldin has publicly kept a closed mouth on his plans.

McKeldin also told the panel of questioners that he thought the state GOP should and would quickly get together to recommend a new U. S. district attorney for Maryland.

The state's two senators reportedly have split on a successor to Bernard J. Flynn who resigned the post after the Republicans were swept into office. Flynn has been forced to stay on because no successor has been named.

Labor Experts Propose T-H Truce, Survey By Neutrals

WASHINGTON, May 31 (AP)—The idea of calling a truce in the labor-management scrap over rewriting the Taft-Hartley law and letting a neutral group decide what's best seems to be gaining favor in administration quarters.

A number of the country's leading labor experts have privately recommended this course to President Eisenhower and he is reportedly giving it serious consideration.

The President promised during his campaign to change the controversial law to make it more acceptable to employers and unions. They, however, have been unable to come to any sort of agreement.

Virtually every point in the law meets opposing views from labor and management whenever it comes up for discussion.

This sharp division has been underscored during the long and contentious hearings before the Senate and House Labor Committees.

U. N. And Reds Extend Recess In Truce Talks

South Korea Delegate, To Continue Boycott, Assails Gen. Harrison

MUNSAN, Monday, June 1 (AP)—President Syngman Rhee summoned the South Korean Cabinet to what was called a "crisis session" over the truce talks today after reportedly drafting a reply to a message from President Eisenhower.

The South Korean move came on the heels of a request by the Communist high command Sunday for an additional three day delay in the talks which had been scheduled to resume this morning at Panmunjom.

The U. N. Command quickly agreed to extend the current recess until Thursday but the South Korean member of the Allied delegation announced he would continue his unprecedented boycott of the talks.

Bitter Charges Fly
An air of crisis hung over the truce negotiations and bitter charges were flying in two directions.

Maj. Gen. Choi Duk Shin, the Korean U. N. truce representative, in a statement at Seoul charged the senior Allied truce delegate, Lt. Gen. William K. Harrison Jr., with being "not sincere" and said he would remain away from the Panmunjom negotiations until the U. N. withdraws or changes the latest Allied truce offer to the Reds.

Harrison declined comment when advised of Choi's statement. The Peiping Radio, fishing in troubled waters, broke an unusual silence Sunday night and denounced the South Korean government for violating "the secrecy" of last Monday's armistice meeting at Panmunjom. It was the first mention by Peiping of the Allied counterplan.

No Hint Of Red Stand
The broadcast, quoting an editorial in the Peiping Peoples Daily, gave no indication of the Red stand on the new proposal.

Choi, last Friday, released the text of an embittered letter he wrote to Harrison. It revealed important provisions of the new Allied plan and disclosed the immediate unfavorable reaction to at least one part of it by North Korean Gen. Nam Il, the chief Red delegate.

Rhee summoned Republic of Korea leaders to a special meeting at his heavily guarded summer villa at Chinhae presumably to discuss the government's position.

The fiery Rhee and his top lieutenants have declared violent opposition to the latest Allied truce plan.

Mahon Sees Arms Budget Compromise

WASHINGTON, May 31 (INS)—A House appropriations expert predicted today that Congress will "compromise" the Eisenhower administration's military budget cut and restore some of the five billion dollars sliced from Air Force funds.

Rep. Mahon, Tex., ranking Democrat on the House subcommittee handling the defense budget, made the prediction on the eve of public Senate hearings on the controversial reduction.

The Navy will have its "day in court" Monday. Witnesses will be Navy Secretary Robert B. Anderson, Adm. William M. Fechteler, and Gen. Lemuel C. Shepherd, Jr., Marine Corps commandant.

Army officials will testify Tuesday followed by Air Force officials Wednesday. The administration will sum up its case for the cut with Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson and Deputy Secretary Roger M. Kyes on the stand Thursday.

Mrs. Rose Davis, 33, was found in a kneeling position by the crib of her younger son, Dean, 4, who was also dead. Glenn, 6, was found in bed, his head under a pillow where he tried to escape the deadly fumes.

"Flying Boxcar" Contract Probe Will Open Today

WASHINGTON, May 31 (AP)—Sen. Bridges (R-N.Y.) said today that Air Force officials must answer "serious questions" about contracts for "Flying Boxcars," at a new investigation opening tomorrow.

A long list of present and former Air Force officials is scheduled to testify at the hearings before a Senate armed services subcommittee.

Bridges, chairman of the appropriations committee and Senate president pro tempore, is spearheading the special investigation of aircraft procurement, which will also check on aircraft purchases by the Army and Navy.

Fairchild Claims Credit

First public hearings will deal with Air Force contracts for the C119 aircraft cargo transports, described as improved models of the big C82 used in World War II.

The Fairchild Aircraft Corp. at Hagerstown, Md., claims credit for developing the "Flying Boxcars," but production contracts also went to the Kaiser-Frazer Corp. Willow Run plant near Detroit.

About a year ago a House armed services subcommittee, headed by Rep. Hebert (D-La.), contended the Air Force was paying Kaiser-Frazer much more for planes developed by Fairchild than Fairchild had received.

Kaiser-Frazer officials vigorously denied this in letters to Congress and through newspaper advertisements.

Operating Difficulties

Last fall a Senate armed services preparedness subcommittee, then headed by Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.), reported that the big cargo aircraft caused operating difficulties.

Johnson assigned two committee investigators, J. Anton and H. M. Devlin, and Bridges said their months of study resulted in the decision to start new hearings. Among those asked to testify are several former Air Force officials, including Lt. Gen. K. B. Wolfe, retired, now with Swedish munitions firm at Asheville, N. C.

Millions Of Subjects Ask Divine Guidance For Young Monarch

LONDON, May 31 (AP)—Queen Elizabeth II joined her prayers with those of her people today in nation-wide religious services dedicated to the impending coronation. It was Trinity Sunday and the churches were filled.

All over Britain, in high-vaulted medieval cathedrals and humble village chapels, clergy and lay worshippers knelt to ask divine guidance for the young Queen. She receives her crown next Tuesday.

The state religion of England centers in the Anglican church, but the millions of those of other faiths in the British Isles joined in devotions in which Elizabeth was the object.

Catholics Offer Prayers

Roman Catholics have begun three days of prayer which will end Monday night when mass is offered in every church in the country. Special Jewish rites will be celebrated in the synagogues next Saturday.

Elizabeth herself made her devotions in the Queen's chapel at Marlborough House. She left Buckingham Palace shortly after 11 a.m. She wore a dark green dress and a small hat of matching color. A diamond and amethyst brooch sparkled on her left shoulder. Her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, was with her in the car. At the chapel, they were joined by Queen Mother Elizabeth.

Sermons Are Broadcast

In addition to the regular services, special sermons were broadcast by leading clergymen in programs carried by BBC. They explained the meaning of the coronation, analyzing its many aspects. The ancient ceremony is largely religious in nature. The clergymen also explained the position of the sovereign in Britain's constitutional monarchy.

The archbishop of Canterbury, who will conduct the Queen through Tuesday's ritual, told the congregation at Canterbury Cathedral today:

"The great solemnity of the coronation means that the Queen comes to accept her temporal kingdom, power and glory from God."

"As she receives it from God, so she would exercise it according to God's word and will and by His constant grace. As she is called by God, so she would be consecrated by God, and in the communion with Him go forth to her task."

Robert The Rhino Is Found Dead

BALTIMORE, May 31 (AP)—Robert, 8-year-old two-horned African rhino, was found dead in his flat cage today as the Ringling Brothers Circus arrived here for a two-day stand.

Attendants said Robert, ranked as a "robust teenager" in the rhino world, caught a bad cold during the circus' Washington engagement two weeks ago and had been ailing ever since.

Pneumonia and tropical dysentery were blamed for the demise of the 2,500 pound youngster, they said.

Circus officials offered Robert's remains to Johns Hopkins University for study. But Hopkins spokesman said they were interested only in simian types, so Robert was carted off to the incinerator by an animal disposal company.

Sees GOP Squabble Elected

Friends of the governor for months have predicted he will run again but McKeldin has publicly kept a closed mouth on his plans.

McKeldin also told the panel of questioners that he thought the state GOP should and would quickly get together to recommend a new U. S. district attorney for Maryland.

The state's two senators reportedly have split on a successor to Bernard J. Flynn who resigned the post after the Republicans were swept into office. Flynn has been forced to stay on because no successor has been named.

U. N. And Reds Extend Recess In Truce Talks

South Korea Delegate, To Continue Boycott, Assails Gen. Harrison

MUNSAN, Monday, June 1 (AP)—President Syngman Rhee summoned the South Korean Cabinet to what was called a "crisis session" over the truce talks today after reportedly drafting a reply to a message from President Eisenhower.

The South Korean move came on the heels of a request by the Communist high command Sunday for an additional three day delay in the talks which had been scheduled to resume this morning at Panmunjom.

The U. N. Command quickly agreed to extend the current recess until Thursday but the South Korean member of the Allied delegation announced he would continue his unprecedented boycott of the talks.

Bitter Charges Fly
An air of crisis hung over the truce negotiations and bitter charges were flying in two directions.

Maj. Gen. Choi Duk Shin, the Korean U. N. truce representative, in a statement at Seoul charged the senior Allied truce delegate, Lt. Gen. William K. Harrison Jr., with being "not sincere" and said he would remain away from the Panmunjom negotiations until the U. N. withdraws or changes the latest Allied truce offer to the Reds.

Harrison declined comment when advised of Choi's statement. The Peiping Radio, fishing in troubled waters, broke an unusual silence Sunday night and denounced the South Korean government for violating "the secrecy" of last Monday's armistice meeting at Panmunjom. It was the first mention by Peiping of the Allied counterplan.

No Hint Of Red Stand
The broadcast, quoting an editorial in the Peiping Peoples Daily, gave no indication of the Red stand on the new proposal.

Choi, last Friday, released the text of an embittered letter he wrote to Harrison. It revealed important provisions of the new Allied plan and disclosed the immediate unfavorable reaction to at least one part of it by North Korean Gen. Nam Il, the chief Red delegate.

Rhee summoned Republic of Korea leaders to a special meeting at his heavily guarded summer villa at Chinhae presumably to discuss the government's position.

The fiery Rhee and his top lieutenants have declared violent opposition to the latest Allied truce plan.

Mahon Sees Arms Budget Compromise

WASHINGTON, May 31 (INS)—A House appropriations expert predicted today that Congress will "compromise" the Eisenhower administration's military budget cut and restore some of the five billion dollars sliced from Air Force funds.

Rep. Mahon, Tex., ranking Democrat on the House subcommittee handling the defense budget, made the prediction on the eve of public Senate hearings on the controversial reduction.

The Navy will have its "day in court" Monday. Witnesses will be Navy Secretary Robert B. Anderson, Adm. William M. Fechteler, outgoing chief of naval operations, and Gen. Lemuel C. Shepherd, Jr., Marine Corps commandant.

Army officials will testify Tuesday followed by Air Force officials Wednesday. The administration will sum up its case for the cut with Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson and Deputy Secretary Roger M. Kyes on the stand Thursday.

Four Die When Fire Sweeps Their Home

NEW YORK, May 31 (INS)—A well-to-do family of four was wiped out today in a fire which swept through their $25,000 Merrick, L. I. home.

Archibald Davis, 39, was found half out of bed where he had fallen when he tried to answer a telephone alarm by a neighbor who discovered the fire.

Mrs. Rose Davis, 33, was found in a kneeling position by the crib of her younger son, Dean, 4, who was also dead. Glenn, 6, was found in bed, his head under a pillow where he tried to escape the deadly fumes.

Holiday Deaths Below Estimate

(By The Associated Press)

Millions of motorists began driving homeward Sunday night, and most apparently were heeding the advice of the National Safety Council to take it slow.

For the death toll from automobile mishaps thus far for the Memorial Day weekend from 6 p.m. Friday through 7:30 Sunday night local time stood at 169, just 71 below the council's estimated road death toll.

The total holiday death toll stood at 261, with drownings accounting for 54 and miscellaneous causes 88. The drowning toll was high and expected to mount even higher. The high temperatures which were pretty general throughout the nation on this last Sunday in May drew millions to beaches.

Ned H. Dearborn, council president, had cautioned homeward bound drivers:

"A little extra care, courtesy and common sense in the next few hours could save the lives of 100 people on the highways. One of these lives might be yours. Think it over. Do your part."

W. Md. Trains Make Last Runs

HAGERSTOWN, Md., May 31 (AP) — "It looked like old times—wheeled and waiting lines for tickets."

That's the way Western Maryland Railway ticket agent Harry Hartman described the crowd turning out for yesterday's last train run between Hagerstown and Cumberland.

Recently, eastbound and westbound trains between the two cities have been carrying an average of two to three passengers each, Hartman said.

Yesterday, the last west-bound from Hagerstown carried 115, and the last east-bound from Cumberland about 150.

Hartman said many others bought tickets, just for souvenirs of the last train trips between the two cities. The Maryland Public Service Commission recently authorized Western Maryland to discontinue the runs because of revenue losses.

that he can't find anyone else in Cumberland interested enough in fossil collecting to participate in his journeys with him.

As a retired railroad worker, Perdue can travel on the B&O on a pass. Consequently, nearly every month he visits Washington to discuss his latest fossil finds with Dr. G. Arthur Cooper, curator of invertebrate paleontology and paleobotany at Smithsonian.

Was School Teacher

The Cumberland fossil collector has had a colorful life. Because his father's school teacher salary had to be spread thin among many children, Perdue did not remain in high school long enough to obtain his diploma. He learned the wall papering trade instead. Nevertheless, his father's training had given the young man a good background in mathematics.

Although not a high school graduate, he was hired to teach in Garrett County schools. He taught at both Altamont and Deer Park and later served as Grantsville High School principal five years.

"I just had to give up the teaching profession in order to support my wife and children," Perdue recalls. It was then that he turned to railroad, a career he followed nearly 30 years. All of his work was in the Car Department and included such assignments as inspection of air brakes.

Because of his hobby one thing is certain, Perdue will never allow himself to grow old.

Anton, Ft. Cumberland Plan New Dining Room At Hotel

Official confirmation has been obtained of an agreement between the Fort Cumberland Hotel Company and Anton Squillari, owner and operator of Anton's restaurant, North Mechanic street, whereby the hotel will embark immediately on an extensive first floor remodeling project which will provide Cumberland with a dining room comparable to the widely popular one that was operated when the Fort Cumberland was first opened to the public.

Anton will be in complete charge of the food service and will close his present place shortly before the Fort Cumberland dining room will be ready to open in the fall.

Plans already approved for the major remodeling operation provide for a large modern kitchen, a bakery and cold storage units; an air conditioned dining room; will accommodate in excess of 100 without crowding; a counter restaurant service adjacent, and three entrances.

The new dining room will be in the rear of the present cocktail lounge and take in some of the back space now included in the lounge. The first and rear lobbies will not be affected.

A new hallway entrance from Liberty street will lead directly to the dining room at the rear end of the hotel building. The present entrance to the cocktail lounge will remain, and there will be access to the dining room from there. The third entrance will be through the lobby.

Modern lighting and fixtures; deluxe decorations, and piped-in dinner music will be dining room features.

The Fort Cumberland has already revamped its main private dining room on the second floor and will again make available the ballroom-banquet hall for groups up to 250.

In addition to his restaurant on North Mechanic Street, Anton operates the Tally Ho in Frostburg; Big Savage Inn on U. S. 40 west of here, and Anton's in Hagerstown.

Nineteen telephone lines including 80 stations were reported out of service during the various storms according to Richard E. Harman, manager of the local office of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company.

These were scattered throughout the general area, Harman noted. As a tree fell in Corriganville it went through some telephone lines and put out three lines to Hyndman. Harman last night said most of the service had been restored.

Tree blocks Route 40

State Police had their share of the headaches. A tree measuring about six feet in diameter was struck by lightning, fell across Route 40 on Negro Mountain and had traffic tied up for about five hours during the early morning.

State roads workers cleared the highway, police said. West Virginia State Police at Romney said there was nothing unusual along Route 50 east and west from that community.

The skies were overcast all day yesterday and another heavy rainstorm visited Cumberland during the early evening. Forecast for today is mostly cloudy, somewhat warmer in the east and central portions.

Mercury hovered around the 60's all Sunday afternoon. The high temperature at Constitution Park was 53 degrees, low was 52 degrees with the same reading at 9 p. m. Humidity at 6 p. m. was 94 per cent, and the official amount of rainfall was 2.49 inches.

The Potomac River last night at 7 o'clock was measured at 8.8 feet.

Coyle Acquitted In Wife's Death

TOWSON, Md., May 31 (AP)—A 49-year-old former government attorney rested in freedom today after a 60-hour trial on charges that he murdered his wife.

Wilbur F. Coyle Jr. was acquitted yesterday at 4:10 a.m. by a jury of 10 men and two women which deliberated more than nine hours.

They accepted his testimony that his 46-year-old wife, Elizabeth, shot him in the neck during a domestic quarrel and that she was killed in a struggle for the gun. Two ballistics experts also testified that he could not have fired the two shots that hit his neck.

The former chief attorney for the Veterans Administration regional office twisted and untwisted a handkerchief while he waited in Towson Circuit Court room to learn his fate.

The jury received the case at 6:49 p.m. Friday after hearing two days of testimony. Most of the time they were out, Coyle sat at the defense table. His shoulders sagged when the foreman announced the verdict: "Not Guilty".

Well-wishers hurriedly crowded around him. Some 40 persons had kept the vigil awaiting the jury report. It was believed to have been one of the longest night-jury sessions in Baltimore County.

The state had contended Coyle shot his wife as a result of a married life filled with friction. The defense contended that most of the trouble had come over Mrs. Coyle's association with a woman and that he had talked to her about seeing a psychiatrist the night of the shooting.

"Walk Straight Line," Graduates Are Told

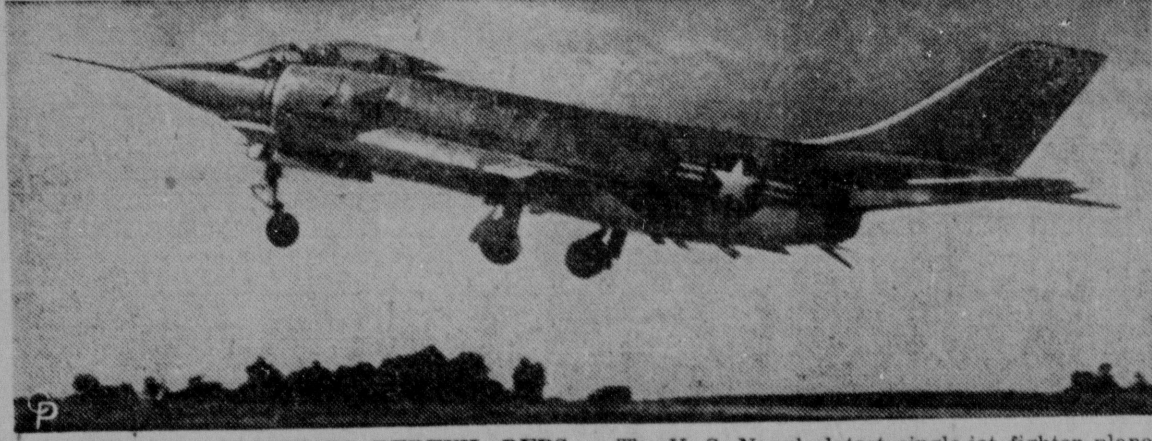

CHESTERTOWN, Md., May 31 (AP)—Dr. Douglas Southall Freeman, historian, scholar and Pulitzer Prize-winning author, told graduates of Washington College today to follow George Washington's example and "walk the straight line."

Seventy-one degrees were conferred at the historic college's 170th commencement exercises, including an honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters to Dr. Freeman.

The noted biographer of Lee and Washington asked the graduates to examine themselves as he outlined the qualities of leadership Washington looked for in young officers.

He listed "integrity" before all else and cautioned that graduates thinking of running for public office, would have to expect, in the condition of the world today, "muck-rakers who will dig into your past."

Four Killed On Maryland Highways As Holiday Ends

By The Associated Press

Four persons had been killed and at least 20 injured on Maryland's rain-soaked highways as the Memorial Day week end drew to a close.

Six persons were injured in a three-car crash on U. S. 111, the York Road, at Timonium Sunday morning and the latest death reported occurred in Prince George's County near Clinton.

State Police identified the victim as William Cassell, 69 of Clinton, a passenger in a car which left Route 444 and hit a tree.

Baltimore County Police held a 34-year-old Baltimore Negro, Ellis Reed, on charges of reckless and drunken driving, attempting to pass when the way was not clear, and driving on an expired chauffeur's license, as a result of the Timonium wreck.

Officers said Reed, who was not hurt, was driving south and attempting to pass a line of cars when his truck collided head-on with a northbound car. The force of the impact threw both vehicles into another car parked off the side of the road. Police estimated damage to the three machines totaled nearly $1,500.

The six injured, all occupants of the northbound car, were taken to Union Memorial Hospital in two ambulances and a police car.

Killed Saturday were: Evelyn Miller, 19-year-old Washington Negro, who died in Prince George's County Hospital of injuries received earlier in a traffic accident near Fairmount Heights.

Gordon S. Barclay, 33, Negro, of Nanticoke, killed on Route 50 near Salisbury when his car ran off the road and hit a telephone pole.

Mrs. Irene E. Lansey, 36, Negro, New York City, killed when a car in which she was riding crashed into the rear of a parked truck on Route 301 near Edgewater.

Baronetcy Claimant Hopes For Some Word Following Coronation

SALISBURY, Md., May 31 (AP)—A claimant to the 12th Baronetcy of Dunbar hopes he'll be able to get the title straightened out after the excitement of Queen Elizabeth's coronation dies down.

Adrian Ivor Dunbar, a 59-year-old farmer on Maryland's Eastern Shore, mused that if things had been different he might have attended the coronation as "Sir Adrian" and his wife as "Lady Dunbar."

He did not express an open wish to attend the coronation though and admitted: "I'm scared to death of social functions."

Dunbar, who lives in a modest home near Fairmount, became potential heir to the baronetcy in January when a cousin died in England. Since then, he said, he has virtually proven his right to the title. He feels that when the coronation and its attendant excitement is over, he'll hear something from his solicitors in Scotland. A 2,000 acre estate and home in Scotland go with the baronetcy.

Coyle Acquitted In Wife's Death

TOWSON, Md., May 31 (AP)—A 49-year-old former government attorney rested in freedom today after a 60-hour trial on charges that he murdered his wife.

Wilbur F. Coyle Jr. was acquitted yesterday at 4:10 a.m. by a jury of 10 men and two women which deliberated more than nine hours.

They accepted his testimony that his 46-year-old wife, Elizabeth, shot him in the neck during a domestic quarrel and that she was killed in a struggle for the gun. Two ballistics experts also testified that he could not have fired the two shots that hit his neck.

The former chief attorney for the Veterans Administration regional office testified and untwisted a handkerchief while he waited in Towson Circuit Court room to learn his fate.

The jury received the case at 6:49 p.m. Friday after hearing two days of testimony. Most of the time they were out, Coyle sat at the defense table. His shoulders sagged when the foreman announced the verdict: "Not Guilty". Well-wishers hurriedly crowded around him. Some 40 persons had kept the vigil awaiting the jury report. It was believed to have been one of the longest night-jury sessions in Baltimore County.

The state had contended Coyle shot his wife as a result of a married life filled with friction. The defense contended that most of the trouble had come over Mrs. Coyle's association with a woman and that he had talked to her about seeing a psychiatrist the night of the shooting.

Baronetcy Claimant Hopes For Some Word Following Coronation

SALISBURY, Md., May 31 (AP)—A claimant to the 12th Baronetcy of Dunbar hopes he'll be able to get the title straightened out after the excitement of Queen Elizabeth's coronation dies down.

Adrian Ivor Dunbar, a 59-year-old farmer on Maryland's Eastern Shore, mused that if things had been different he might have attended the coronation as "Sir Adrian" and his wife as "Lady Dunbar."

He did not express an open wish to attend the coronation though and admitted: "I'm scared to death of social functions."

Dunbar, who lives in a modest home near Fairmount, became potential heir to the baronetcy in January when a cousin died in England. Since then, he said, he has virtually proven his right to the title. He feels that when the coronation and its attendant excitement is over, he'll hear something from his solicitors in Scotland. A 2,000-acre estate and home in Scotland go with the baronetcy.

Narrow Escape

CENTREVILLE, Md., May 31 (AP)—A 30-year-old farm hand who lost his footing and hung head down, with his face less than two feet from the blades of a moving disking machine, was recovering at home today.

David Wooters escaped with bruises of the head, shoulder and arm when a companion, Pat O'Farrell, 15, of Longwoods, who was following Wooters tractor, stopped his vehicle and raced to Wooters' aid. Wooters' foot had wedged between the tractor brake and steering column, suspending him head first dangerously close to the blade of a tandem disk he was towing. He and O'Farrell were working on the farm of Charles Rathell, near Wye Mills.

"Walk Straight Line," Graduates Are Told

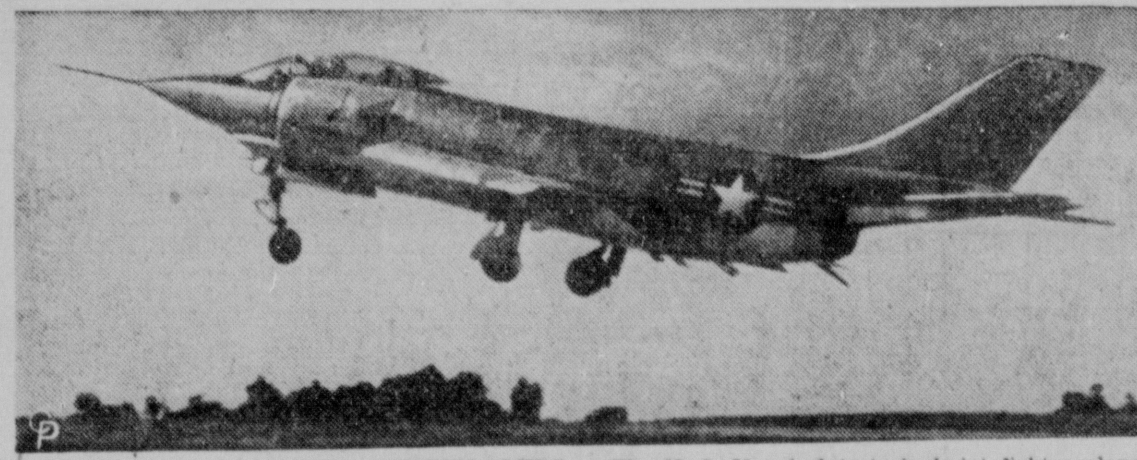

CHESTERTOWN, Md., May 31 (AP)—Dr. Douglas Southall Freeman, historian, scholar and Pulitzer Prize-winning author, told graduates of Washington College today to follow George Washington's example and "walk the straight line."

Seventy-one degrees were conferred at the historic college's 170th commencement exercises, including an honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters to Dr. Freeman.

The noted biographer of Lee and Washington asked the graduates to examine themselves as he outlined the qualities of leadership Washington looked for in young officers.

He listed "integrity" before all else and cautioned that graduates thinking of running for public office, would have to expect, in the condition of the world today, "muck-rakers who will dig into your past."

Four Killed On Maryland Highways As Holiday Ends

By The Associated Press

Four persons had been killed and at least 20 injured on Maryland's rain-soaked highways as the Memorial Day week end drew to a close.

Six persons were injured in a three-car crash on U. S. 111, the York Road, at Timonium Sunday morning and the latest death reported occurred in Prince George's County near Clinton.

State Police identified the victim as William Cassell, 69, of Clinton, a passenger in a car which left Route 444 and hit a tree.

Baltimore County Police held a 34-year-old Baltimore Negro, Ellis Reed, on charges of reckless and drunken driving, attempting to pass when the way was not clear, and driving on an expired chauffeur's license, as a result of the Timonium wreck.

Officers said Reed, who was not hurt, was driving south and attempting to pass a line of cars when his truck collided head-on with a northbound car. The force of the impact threw both vehicles into another car parked off the side of the road. Police estimated damage to the three machines totaled nearly $1,500.

The six injured, all occupants of the northbound car, were taken to Union Memorial Hospital in two ambulances and a police car.

Killed Saturday were: Evelyn Miller, 19-year-old Washington Negro, who died in Prince George's County Hospital of injuries received earlier in a traffic accident near Fairmount Heights.

Gordon S. Barclay, 33, Negro, of Nanticoke, killed on Route 50 near Salisbury when his car ran off the road and hit a telephone pole.

Mrs. Irene E. Lansey, 36, Negro, New York City, killed when a car in which she was riding crashed into the rear of a parked truck on Route 301 near Edgewater.

Immunity For Witnesses

Senator McCarran (D., Nev.), sponsor of a bill to give immunity from prosecution to witnesses who otherwise wouldn't testify against themselves in congressional committee investigations, is expected to return to Washington on June 5. At that time the Republican leadership in the Senate will have to decide whether to put the bill to a vote.

Senator Taft on May 12 moved to lay the bill aside temporarily during McCarran's absence, promising that "within two weeks, or a reasonable time, I shall move to take up the bill again." Taft said that a number of senators had expressed "great doubt" about the bill, also that he had received a "communication on the subject" from Attorney General Brownell. Taft himself characterized the bill as dealing with the "immunity bath."

A similar bill had been passed by the Senate viva voce without debate on July 3, 1952. But on the motion of the then majority leader, Senator McFarland (D., Ariz.), the vote was reconsidered the same day. The bill was not taken up again before the final adjournment of the 82nd Congress.

The present measure was reported favorably by the Senate Judiciary Committee on April 20. Senator Kefauver (D., Tenn.) subsequently submitted his "individual views" on the bill, saying he was "thoroughly in accord" with its purposes but objected to its present form.

Senator McCarran on May 6 asked the Senate to approve the bill during a session devoted to routine affairs, when any extended discussion would have been impossible. Taft, in charge of the order of business in the Senate, at once objected, saying he would permit the bill to be brought up only when there was opportunity for full discussion of what he regarded as a "wide-open" and possibly dangerous grant of power to congressional committees.

But on May 8 the bill was rolling to passage with only a dozen senators on the floor. Action was blocked when a quorum call, requested by Kefauver, failed to bring forth the necessary number of senators.

The McCarran bill provides that two-thirds of the members of a committee may offer immunity to a "silent" witness, provided that at least one member of the minority party is included. The offer may be authorized before the witness appears, but cannot go into effect until the witness has claimed the privilege of the Fifth Amendment.

It is this latter provision that would keep the witness from getting an immunity bath, the Judiciary Committee report contends: "(The witness) would have to raise specifically his claim for privilege, and thus put the committee on notice that it was faced with a decision as to whether, for the greater good, the witness should be required to testify."

The Justice Department objection to the bill is on the ground that no provision is made for the attorney general to "participate" in the committee's decision. Kefauver has submitted an amendment that would require a committee to inform the attorney general "at least one week in advance of voting on the question of granting immunity to any witness." Even this would not meet the Justice Department complaint that "it would seem inadvisable for others to be cloaked with an authority capable of preventing the attorney general from fully performing his duty" of conducting criminal prosecutions.

Another Tough One

Even if the UN, after a peace settlement in Korea, should admit the Chinese Communists, over U. S. opposition, as the government of China, what would or could be done about the status of Formosa? We could never accept their control of the island which, acting independently of the UN, we have guaranteed to the Nationalist regime of Chiang Kai-shek as its haven of refuge.

Also, Formosa is of strategic value on the communications line between Japan and the Philippines. Former U. S. Ambassador to India Chester Bowles declares that, although eventually we shall have to "go along" with the other great democracies of the world on the Chinese Reds in UN, we must never under any circumstances let the Reds take over Formosa.

President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill at the Cairo conference in December 1943 promised that Formosa would be restored to "China." And the Reds of course claim to be "China" now—a claim that would be strengthened if and when accepted by UN.

The Chiang government from all accounts has been putting many economic reforms into effect on Formosa, with U. S. advice and assistance. The regime seems to be much more popular with the natives than originally.

If a self-determination referendum were held on the island, under neutral supervision and with all outside pressures barred, the natives might very well vote for the Nationalists over the Communists by a wide margin. That would clear the way for the Communists to stop pressing their claim to Formosa, losing a minimum of "face" in deferring to the "will of the people."

Bridge's Birthday

In New York the other day there was considerable whooping and hollering on both sides of the East River as a crowd gathered to mark the 70th birthday of the Brooklyn Bridge.

But this was nothing like the opening, when, newspaper files reveal, warships were anchored in the East River, President Chester A. Arthur and a sizable segment of his cabinet were on hand, and "Fulton Street never looked so gay."

It was a Thursday, that May 24, but the whole town turned out as on a holiday. As it stood on opening day, a nest of spidery cables and Gothic towers, it represented 13 years of construction work and 26 years of quarreling, dreaming, suffering and herculean labors. It was a bridge, as history has proved, that taught the world how to build suspension bridges.

Certainly in this hustling civilization a bridge such as the Brooklyn Bridge, or a slender span that plays hopscotch across the islands of San Francisco Bay, is a landmark of the present, just as the aqueducts of the Romans are landmarks of an earlier era.

There is beauty and the most precise kind of utility. An artist can look at it and see a poem in steel or concrete. An engineer can admire the way the buffeting of wind and weather have been provided for. A child may stand wide-eyed in wonder.

How To Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Common Sense After Dog Bites

Man has an inherent fear of being bitten by a stray dog because of the danger of rabies. This dread is so ingrained in our make-up that a panic might ensue if some one yelled "mad dog" on the corner of a busy intersection of any large city. Every one is frightened because it is common knowledge that victims of the disease are doomed.

This fear of rabies (rabophobia) is becoming a real problem in the United States. The Pasteur treatment is well known and as a result thousands of people who have been bitten are vaccinated each year, many through undue apprehension rather than common sense. This vaccine is potent and now and then produces serious reactions such as encephalitis and paralysis. Such complications are rare (1 to 2,800) but with thousands of vaccinations the few reactions stick out like sore thumbs.

Physicians weigh carefully the possible ill effects of the vaccine against the risk of acquiring the malady. Thus when a person is nipped and there is a strong possibility that the animal is healthy, why take the chance of a severe reaction to a vaccine that is not needed? This type of judgment calls for clear thinking at the time of the accident. Most dog bitten individuals receive too much bad advice from well meaning friends and are in a state of panic long before they seek medical care. They demand the vaccine and some will go from one physician to another until they get it.

There is an easier way to solve the problem. Vaccinating our valuable dogs with a special anti-rabic serum and impounding strays, virtually will eliminate the threat of rabies. We are protected and so are our pets. It is just as simple as this and in states where such laws have been passed there is no rabies.

Which humans should be given vaccine? The decision depends upon the nature of the exposure and the condition of the biting animals. The latter is so important that an effort always should be made to find the dog. The animal should not be killed unless absolutely necessary because his behavior in the subsequent 10 days will determine whether the victim requires the vaccine. Treatment is not needed when the dog is healthy at the time it bites, and remains well for the next 10 days. If the condition of the animal changes and the veterinarian becomes suspicious, it is advisable to start treatment immediately. The injections also may be begun if the dog acts sick at the time it bites but if it recovers the "shots" may be discontinued. There is no doubt as to the necessity for the vaccine if there is any question about the animal's being rabid, if it escapes, or is killed. The same can be said of bites from wolves, foxes, and other wild animals.

In contrast, the vaccine is not needed after contact with an animal (without being bitten), even though it is rabid. The exception is when the skin has been licked, especially over a cut or abraded area. Otherwise, the best plan is to have the animal isolated and watched carefully for signs of rabies. Meanwhile, animal bites should be washed immediately with soap and running water which will remove most of the organisms, including the virus that causes rabies. The lesion may then be covered with a sterile bandage.

NERVE INJECTION

E. R. writes: What is a nerve root injection?

REPLY: The injection of an anesthetic such as procaine into a nerve as it emerges from the spinal cord. The procedure is done to deaden pain over an area in which the bothersome nerve is distributed.

ELEPHANT LEG

J. H. writes: Do the legs become progressively larger in elephants or does enlargement cease at a certain stage?

REPLY: Enlargement usually ceases at a certain stage unless additional infection occurs.

SKIN OUTBREAK

Mrs. L. writes: Is dermatitis the same as a rash?

REPLY: Yes: Dermatitis is a more technical term.

KIDNEY DISORDER

J. H. writes: What should be the pattern of living of a person with pyelonephritis?

REPLY: I assume you are resigned to a lifetime of kidney trouble and that you have done everything possible to alleviate the condition. If not, this should be your first aim.

Otherwise, follow the rules of health to the letter and do not use alcohol, spices, vinegar, and other kidney irritants. Try also to avoid colds because with each infection additional involvement of the organs may occur. Report periodically to your physician for new developments and treatments of pyelonephritis.

Mayor Of Baltimore Gets Son In Favored Military Spot; Three Artists Assigned To Scrapbook; Governors Protest Possible National Guard Reduction

WASHINGTON—Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro of Baltimore, who had an excellent record when in Congress, recently used his political position to get his draft-age son placed where he was not likely to be sent to Korea.

Thanks to the intervention of Senator John Butler of Maryland, young D'Alesandro was able to get transferred out of officers' training school, received an immediate commission and was assigned to the Judge Advocate General's office. This being the legal division of the Army, its officers do not usually see combat. Young D'Alesandro is 23 years old.

Reached for comment at Camp Breckinridge, Ky., Lt. D'Alesandro admitted that he had been taken out of basic training at Indiantown Gap, Pa., and given a direct commission. He said he had just graduated from the University of Maryland Law School and was entitled to it. Other questions he referred to the 2nd Army.

What happened was that the mayor of Baltimore first approached Senator Glenn Beall of Maryland, Republican, who declined to intervene for D'Alesandro.

Your Finances

By ROGER W. BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass. — How heavily, without danger, can you as an individual go into debt? How large a mortgage can you handle and at the same time make installment payments on a new car, TV, and a home freezer? These are good times; the best ever, we are told. Yet, in some sections six times as many persons are failing to meet their installment payments on time today as failed in normal times. How are you fixed?

Are You Rolling In Money? The U. S. Department of Commerce reported record personal earnings of $268.3 billions for 1952 — a 5 1/2 per cent jump over 1951. The pay rolls of private industry accounted for much of the increase. Government pay rolls, which included the military, were up 13 per cent. The report implies that almost everybody but the farmer should be rolling in money.

The all-time income high for farmers came in 1947 with a net of $16.7 billions. The year 1950 dropped about 25 per cent from 1947. But Korea boosted output and prices, and the net for the farmer moved up again to a little better than $14 billions for 1951. Then 1952 dropped back slightly from 1951, and a further 5 per cent drop in net income is expected for 1953. Perhaps the farmer is not rolling in money.

Are You Saving Enough? In these good times it's also shocking to discover that the median liquid asset holdings of all U. S. families (money readily available, savings accounts, stocks and bonds) have decreased 50 per cent from $470 in 1947 to $230 in 1952.

Many economists received quite a jolt a short time ago when the Bureau of Labor Statistics announced the results of the financial condition of some 12,000 families it studied in 1950. Its preliminary report read as if the average family was spending that year $200 more than it was taking in. This does not give the complete story; but the situation is serious and should be corrected either by spending less or by producing more.

Let Us All Produce More Surely our standard of living has increased remarkably in the last decade; people have more refrigerators, appliances, automobiles and homes. We have, however, as a nation, lacked the moral stamina to work harder and longer to deserve these blessings and have reserves for an emergency. Now is the time to save more. Also, try to pay more down on anything which you do buy on installments or other forms of credit.

Of course, most taxpayers won't begrudge like the services of government artists to lay out his fancy scrapbooks, but in these days of economy, congressional economists don't like it. They point out that the President has the advantage of being able to borrow money from any government agency without charging it against the White House budget.

Stifling National Guard

It didn't hit the headlines, but there was a lot of griping among the governors when they gathered in Washington the other day for a report on the nation's problems. They were concerned over a secret proposal to stifle the National Guard.

The matter came up when Undersecretary of Defense Roger Kyes appeared before the governors and was challenged by Governor William Marland of West Virginia regarding a secret memo circulated inside the Defense Department which would prevent National Guard units from enlisting 18-year-old youngsters.

"This would kill the National Guard," Governor Marland protested.

Governor Lausche of Ohio, Governor Kennon of Louisiana, and Governor Clement of Tennessee were the most vigorous in backing him up.

Deputy Secretary Kyes tried to pacify the governors, said that the plan to stifle the National Guard was only a proposal. The Defense Department, he said, was still studying it.

Secret Memo

Meanwhile, this column can reveal that Dr. John A. Hannah, who replaced Anna Rosenberg as the Defense Department's manpower boss, has drafted a confidential memo which he sent to the Army, Navy and Air Force, aimed at curtailing the National Guard.

"Sizeable numbers of draft-eligible young men are now being deferred from the draft by virtue of enlisting in a National Guard unit before attaining the age of 18 years and six months," he explained. "This is authorized under the Universal Military Training and Service Act, following a proclamation by the governor of a state to the effect that his state units cannot be maintained by enlistments of personnel exempt from induction."

"If the secretary of Defense announces a determination that trained personnel are available to enable the National Guard to maintain authorized strength, enlistment in a National Guard unit will no longer be ground for deferment," Dr. Hannah continued. "My office is of the opinion that the secretary of Defense should now make the determination."

Hannah pointed out in his confidential memo that "of the two million trained men returned to civilian life, most will have had at least two years of active duty, and many will have served in Korea. The majority of the 640,000 inductees will have a ready reserve obligation under the terms of the Universal Military Training and Service Act. They can perform this obligation by joining the National Guard."

He estimated that both ground and air units of the National Guard would need a maximum of 210,000 men during the next 18 months, and suggested that they be drawn from the pool of veterans who are still subject to call in the reserves. Actual fact, however, is that though the National Guard has made an intense effort to recruit these obligated reservists, less than four per cent of those recruit-

Matter Of Fact

By JOSEPH And STEWART ALSOP

Sales Tax Ahead?

WASHINGTON

Before the autumn, the Eisenhower administration has got to make one of the most uncomfortable political choices in recent history. Boiled down to its essentials, the choice is between a sound national policy plus some form of national sales tax, or a wholly unsound policy and no sales tax.

It is an open secret that various forms of sales tax are therefore being considered, as is inevitable and entirely proper in the circumstances. And in view of the known character and courage of Secretary of the Treasury George Humphrey, it is a fair bet that the Treasury, at least, will end by advising the President to take the political risk of crossing this particular Rubicon.

There are three reasons why such a grave political risk must now be weighed and perhaps accepted.

First, the budget is not now in balance. And on present prospects, it will be even further from being balanced next year. If all the President's tax recommendations are followed by the Congress, the deficit in the cash budget for the 1954 fiscal year will be $2.8 billion. In the next fiscal year, the full effects will be felt of the expiration of the excess profits tax and the extra 11 per cent personal income tax. With other tax income and national expenditures remaining at the same level, the deficit for the 1955 fiscal year will then be above $6 billion.

Way To Catastrophe

Second, the leaders of the administration are increasingly recognizing that in the really critical budgetary area—the defense program—there are great gaps that cannot be covered without additional expenditures. The problem of America's lack of air defense cannot be ducked forever. Neither can the problem of our declining air-striking power. The cost of solving these problems will more than counter-balance any savings that may be made elsewhere.

Third, every other source of revenue except the sales tax is being examined. Ways are also being studied, as they ought to be, to compensate the lower income groups for the effects of a sales tax. The far more soundly organized tax systems of Britain and Canada both rely on the kind of mixture of direct and indirect taxation that may lie ahead for the United States. If a sound dollar and national survival both depend on it, the country is likely to accept the hard necessity of a sales tax, and even to admire the administration's guts for doing what is needful but difficult.

France's Position Cited

They are not adamant from mere conservative superstition, either. Secretary Humphrey argues, and argues convincingly, that if the budget is not balanced shortly, the people of this country will begin to lose their faith in the value of their own currency. If and when that happens, the consequences that inevitably ensue can already be seen in a country like France.

Money cannot then be borrowed for sound long range projects, either by government or industry. People do not look for productive ways to invest money, but wish to hide it or to speculate with it. As in France, there is greater and greater reliance on indirect taxation to keep the crazy equipage on the road. Meanwhile the equipage itself grows crazier and crazier as lack of funds for investment causes needed maintenance and improvement to be scrapped.

In the tax field, meanwhile, special excise taxes have already been carried to a foolish point. Even more significantly, the evidence is convincing the taxpaying-goose will actually lay more golden eggs in the long run if income taxes are somewhat reduced to encourage productive enterprise. Where else, then, can the Treasury task force on taxes now turn, except to some form of national sales levy? That is the question squarely confronting Under Secretary of the Treasury Marion Folsom and the other experts who are working with him.

In Search Of Optimism

Comes the time in the life of a nation when a weariness over pessimism, disasters, wars and politics sets in. The people want to be gay. They want to have that warm feeling that everything will go well, and even if, at the moment, the burdens of life seem heavy, there is joy in being alive.

In a sense, this was the emotion of the American people when they elected Dwight Eisenhower to the Presidency. His enormous majority represented more than the Republican party; it was a popular response to a cheerful and constructive personality. The phrase, "I like Ike," was gay and charming and fitted the mood.

As far as one can judge, the mood has not changed. The American people still are in search of optimism. It is true that the news does not run that way, but the people would like it to. Perhaps in a manner, this explains the overemphasis on silliness, on a boy becoming a girl, on a baby being born on a television show, on the varieties of feminine pulchritude — anything but the endless emphasis on politics, wars and scandals.

The news of the coronation of a British queen is a diversion from the quarrels between our two countries. A little gaiety is good for the soul. Why bring up all the bad things between us when actually there are so many good things that we can do together?

There are always grumblers who complain about the romantic, but I find the coronation a pleasant interlude, a grand medieval pageant, two young people, Elizabeth and Philip, who love one another and are beloved.

Who really cares that a few days later, grumpy old Churchill will sit with Eisenhower and whoever is, at the moment, and for a moment, premier of France, to settle the fate of the universe? Of course, ed over the past five months have come from this source. That is why the governors were up in arms over the Pentagon's proposal.

Secretary of Agriculture Benson, an apostle of the Mormon church, is so strict about his religion that he won't appear on radio programs on Sunday. However, he missed morning services one Sunday because of the outbreak of hoof-and-mouth disease in Mexico. Benson made it to the afternoon services, apologized to the congregation for the crisis. He explained that he had been on the phone to Mexico all morning, that there was grave danger of the disease spreading to American cattle . . .

we shall discuss this, as we must, knowing full well that what statesmen settle, other statesmen unsettle, and the everlasting hurdy-gurdy turns out the same tunes.

Leo McCarey, the motion picture producer, said to me some time ago that what he misses most these days is sheer fun. Not the wisecrack, not the dirty joke, not the new twist to an old witticism, but absolute fun, like roaring with laughter at a man slipping on a banana peel—even the slipper himself laughing because everybody else laughed. It was an idea—so we tried it out—we laughed at each other and at ourselves and we had a wonderful time.

We used to go off into fads in this country, like "The Simple Life," which wasn't so simple, or Cousteau, which meant nothing, or Billikens, which were Americanized Buddhas—all sorts of fads and fancies that made no sense but excited everyone. Today, the most stirring subject is irregular sex, which must mean that we are a very tired people. A young, fresh folk takes everything in its stride without too much analysis. Perhaps that is why psychologists and psychiatrists have become such a vogue; we are tired enough to be analyzed.

I look back to Harry Truman's shirts and caps and his capers and I must say I miss them. They seemed out of place in the Presidency; yet they are missed just as the quips and pranks of Teddy Roosevelt left a void when they disappeared. Calvin Coolidge's dry humor made rounds of table talk and still does. In our generation there is no Mark Twain. One goes to a public dinner and listens to heavy-laden manuscripts with which the speakers have not amply acquainted themselves. Wit is rare and often of ancient vintage. That's what we need—a Finley Peter Dunne speaking in the idiom of our century.

Even Joe McCarthy is sure that we are not going to hell on a toboggan. He most of all, because while he is too often photographed frowning, he is actually a cheerful soul. And that is, of course, the truth about most of us. We are cheerful. We want to be cheerful. We want to be gay. But the course of events keeps us fouled up in gloomy anxieties.

The point of it is that thus far nothing has been quite as bad as was expected. So why not become slightly optimistic for a while?

Immunity For Witnesses

Senator McCarran (D., Nev.), sponsor of a bill to give immunity from prosecution to witnesses who otherwise wouldn't testify against themselves in congressional committee investigations, is expected to return to Washington on June 5. At that time the Republican leadership in the Senate will have to decide whether to put the bill to a vote.

Senator Taft on May 12 moved to lay the bill aside temporarily during McCarran's absence, promising that "within two weeks, or a reasonable time, I shall move to take up the bill again." Taft said that a number of senators had expressed "great doubt" about the bill, also that he had received a "communication on the subject" from Attorney General Brownell. Taft himself characterized the bill as dealing with the "immunity bath."

A similar bill had been passed by the Senate viva voce without debate on July 3, 1952. But on the motion of the then majority leader, Senator McFarland (D., Ariz.), the vote was reconsidered the same day. The bill was not taken up again before the final adjournment of the 82nd Congress.

The present measure was reported favorably by the Senate Judiciary Committee on April 20. Senator Kefauver (D., Tenn.) subsequently submitted his "individual views" on the bill, saying he was "thoroughly in accord" with its purposes but objected to its present form.

Senator McCarran on May 6 asked the Senate to approve the bill during a session devoted to routine affairs, when any extended discussion would have been impossible. Taft, in charge of the order of business in the Senate, at once objected, saying he would permit the bill to be brought up only when there was opportunity for full discussion of what he regarded as a "wide-open" and possibly dangerous grant of power to congressional committees.

But on May 8 the bill was rolling to passage with only a dozen senators on the floor. Action was blocked when a quorum call, requested by Kefauver, failed to bring forth the necessary number of senators.

The McCarran bill provides that two-thirds of the members of a committee may offer immunity to a "silent" witness, provided that at least one member of the minority party is included. The offer may be authorized before the witness appears, but cannot go into effect until the witness has claimed the privilege of the Fifth Amendment.

It is this latter provision that would keep the witness from getting an immunity bath, the Judiciary Committee report contends: "(The witness) would have to raise specifically his claim for privilege, and thus put the committee on notice that it was faced with a decision as to whether, for the greater good, the witness should be required to testify."

The Justice Department objection to the bill is on the ground that no provision is made for the attorney general to "participate" in the committee's decision. Kefauver has submitted an amendment that would require a committee to inform the attorney general "at least one week in advance of voting on the question of granting immunity to any witness." Even this would not meet the Justice Department complaint that "it would seem inadvisable for others to be cloaked with an authority capable of preventing the attorney general from fully performing his duty" of conducting criminal prosecutions.

Another Tough One

Even if the UN, after a peace settlement in Korea, should admit the Chinese Communists, over U. S. opposition, as the government of China, what would or could be done about the status of Formosa? We could never accept their control of the island which, acting independently of the UN, we have guaranteed to the Nationalist regime of Chiang Kai-shek as its haven of refuge.

Also, Formosa is of strategic value on the communications line between Japan and the Philippines. Former U. S. Ambassador to India Chester Bowles declares that, although eventually we shall have to "go along" with the other great democracies of the world on the Chinese Reds in UN, we must never under any circumstances let the Reds take over Formosa.

President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill at the Cairo conference in December 1943 promised that Formosa would be restored to "China." And the Reds of course claim to be "China" now—a claim that would be strengthened if and when accepted by UN.

The Chiang government from all accounts has been putting many economic reforms into effect on Formosa, with U. S. advice and assistance. The regime seems to be much more popular with the natives than originally.

If a self-determination referendum were held on the island, under neutral supervision and with all outside pressures barred, the natives might very well vote for the Nationalists over the Communists by a wide margin. That would clear the way for the Communists to stop pressing their claim to Formosa, losing a minimum of "face" in deferring to the "will of the people."

Bridge's Birthday

In New York the other day there was considerable whooping and hollering on both sides of the East River as a crowd gathered to mark the 70th birthday of the Brooklyn Bridge.

But this was nothing like the opening, when, newspaper files reveal, warships were anchored in the East River, President Chester A. Arthur and a sizable segment of his cabinet were on hand, and "Fulton Street never looked so gay."

It was a Thursday, that May 24, but the whole town turned out as on a holiday. As it stood on opening day, a nest of spidery cables and Gothic towers, it represented 13 years of construction work and 28 years of quarreling, dreaming, suffering and herculean labors. It was a bridge, as history has proved, that taught the world how to build suspension bridges.

Certainly in this hustling civilization a bridge such as the Brooklyn Bridge, or a slender span that plays hopscotch across the islands of San Francisco Bay, is a landmark of the present, just as the aqueducts of the Romans are landmarks of an earlier era.

There is beauty, and the most precise kind of utility. An artist can look at it and see a poem in steel or concrete. An engineer can admire the way the buffeting of wind and weather have been provided for. A child may stand wide-eyed in wonder.

How To Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Common Sense After Dog Bites

Man has an inherent fear of being bitten by a stray dog because of the danger of rabies. This dread is so ingrained in our make-up that a panic might ensue if some one yelled "mad dog" on the corner of a busy intersection of any large city. Every one is frightened because it is common knowledge that victims of the disease are doomed.

This fear of rabies (rabiphobia) is becoming a real problem in the United States. The Pasteur treatment is well known and as a result thousands of people who have been bitten are vaccinated each year, many through undue apprehension rather than common sense. This vaccine is potent and now and then produces serious reactions such as encephalitis and paralysis. Such complications are rare (1 to 2,800) but with thousands of vaccinations the few reactions stick out like sore thumbs.

Physicians weigh carefully the possible ill effects of the vaccine against the risk of acquiring the malady. Thus when a person is nipped and there is a strong possibility that the animal is healthy, why take the chance of a severe reaction to a vaccine that is not needed? This type of judgment calls for clear thinking at the time of the accident. Most dog bitten individuals receive too much bad advice from well meaning friends and are in a state of panic long before they seek medical care. They demand the vaccine and some will go from one physician to another until they get it.

There is an easier way to solve the problem. Vaccinating our valuable dogs with a special anti-rabies serum and impounding strays, virtually will eliminate the threat of rabies. We are protected and so are our pets. It is just as simple as this and in states where such laws have been passed there is no rabies.

Which humans should be given vaccine? The decision depends upon the nature of the exposure and the condition of the biting animals. The latter is so important that an effort always should be made to find the dog. The animal should not be killed unless absolutely necessary because his behavior in the subsequent 10 days will determine whether the victim requires the vaccine. Treatment is not needed when the dog is healthy at the time it bites, and remains well for the next 10 days. If the condition of the animal changes and the veterinarian becomes suspicious, it is advisable to start treatment immediately. The injections also may be begun if the dog acts sick at the time it bites but if it recovers the "shots" may be discontinued. There is no doubt as to the necessity for the vaccine if there is any question about the animal's being rabid, if it escapes, or is killed. The same can be said of bites from wolves, foxes, and other wild animals.

In contrast, the vaccine is not needed after contact with an animal (without being bitten), even though it is rabid. The exception is when the skin has been licked, especially over a cut or abraded area. Otherwise, the best plan is to have the animal isolated and watched carefully for signs of rabies. Meanwhile, animal bites should be washed immediately with soap and running water which will remove most of the organisms, including the virus that causes rabies. The lesion may then be covered with a sterile bandage.

NERVE INJECTION

E. R. writes: What is a nerve root injection?

REPLY

The injection of an anesthetic such as procaine into a nerve as it emerges from the spinal cord. The procedure is done to deaden pain over an area in which the bothersome nerve is distributed.

ELEPHANT LEG

J. H. writes: Do the legs become progressively larger in elephantiasis or does enlargement cease at a certain stage?

REPLY

Enlargement usually ceases at a certain stage unless additional infection occurs.

SKIN OUTBREAK

Mrs. L. writes: Is dermatitis the same as a rash?

REPLY

Yes: Dermatitis is a more technical term.

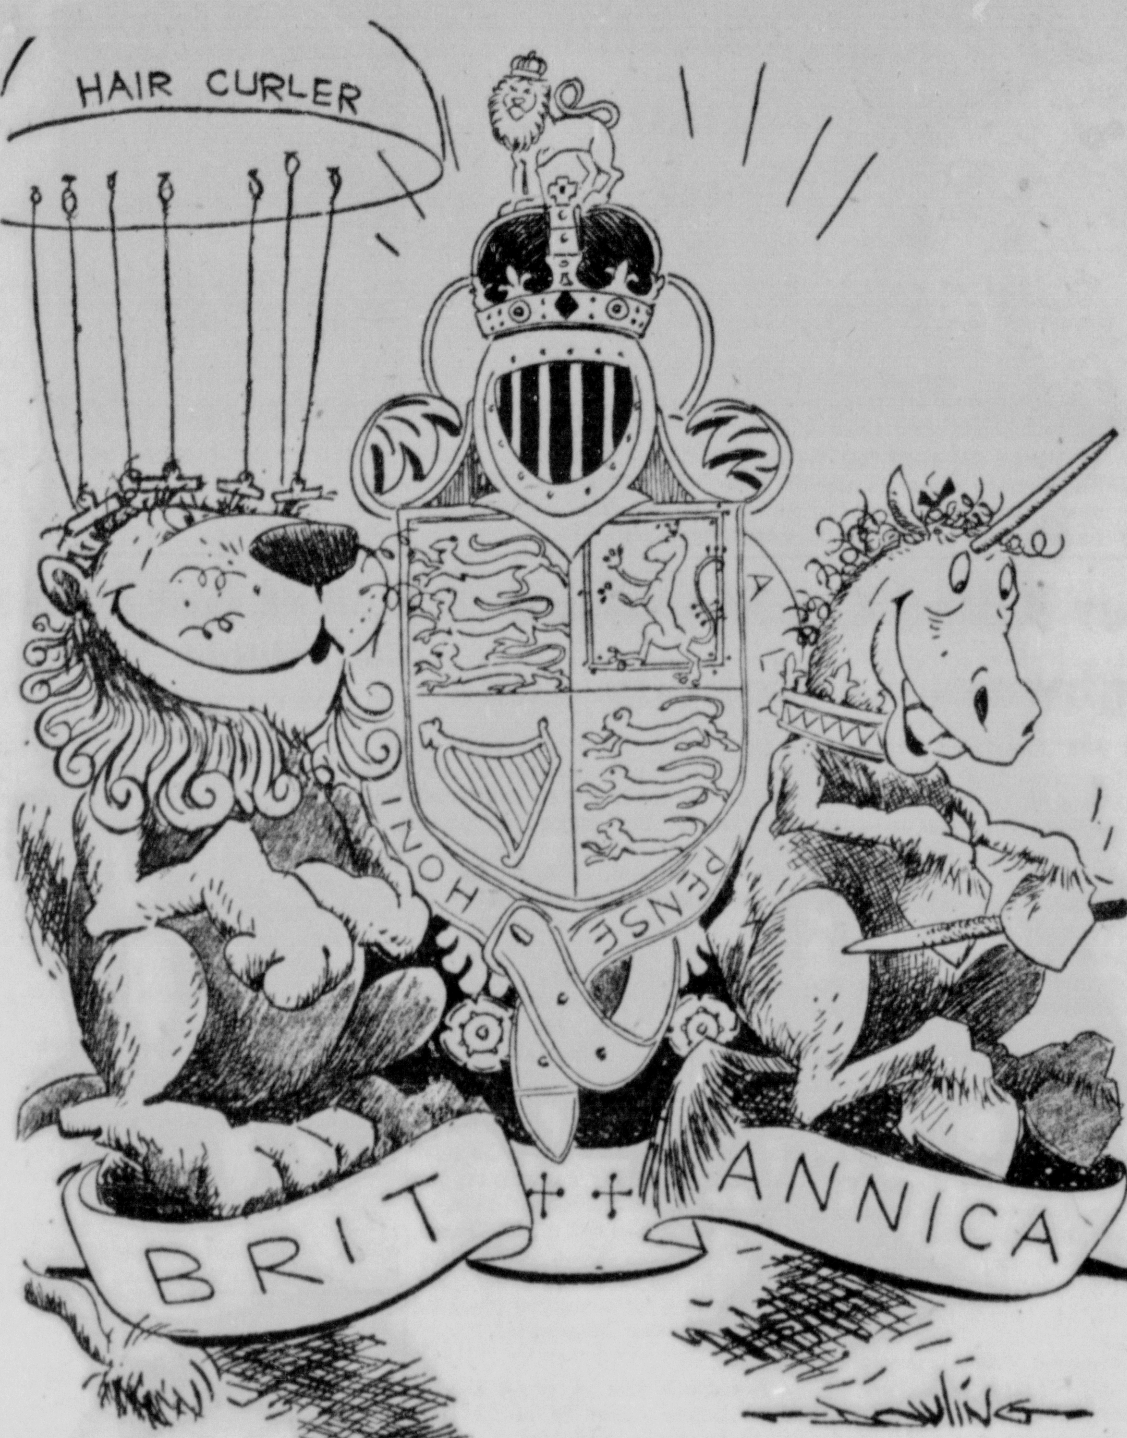

KIDNEY DISEASE

J. H. writes: What should be the pattern of living of a person with pyelonephritis?

REPLY

I assume you are resigned to a lifetime of kidney trouble and that you have done everything possible to alleviate the condition. If not, this should be your first aim. Otherwise, follow the rules of health to the letter and do not use alcohol, spices, vinegar, and other kidney irritants. Try also to avoid colds because with each infection additional involvement of the organs may occur. Report periodically to your physician for new developments and treatments of pyelonephritis.

Mayor Of Baltimore Gets Son In Favored Military Spot; Three Artists Assigned To Scrapbook; Governors Protest Possible National Guard Reduction

WASHINGTON—Mayor Thomas D'Alessandro of Baltimore, who had an excellent record when in Congress, recently used his political position to get his draft-age son placed where he was not likely to be sent to Korea.

Thanks to the intervention of Senator John Butler of Maryland, young D'Alessandro was able to get transferred out of officers' training school, received an immediate commission and was assigned to the Judge Advocate General's office. This being the legal division of the Army, its officers do not usually see combat. Young D'Alessandro is 23 years old.

Reached for comment at Camp Breckenridge, Ky., Lt. D'Alessandro admitted that he had been taken out of basic training at Indiantown Gap, Pa., and given a direct commission. He said he had just graduated from the University of Maryland Law School and was entitled to it. Other questions he referred to the 2nd Army.

What happened was that the mayor of Baltimore first approached Senator Glenn Beall of Maryland, Republican, who declined to intervene for D'Alessandro.

Jr. However, Senator Butler, also a Republican, was more obliging. He talked to Gen. Miles Reber, the Army's legislative representative on Capitol Hill, who got young D'Alessandro an immediate commission, had him taken out of basic training and arranged for assignment to the Judge Advocate General's office.

Senator Butler, when asked why he, a Republican, had pulled wires for a Democrat, said that the mayor was a friend of his and they had served together in the city government of Baltimore.

Ike's Scrapbook

It won't show up on the White House payroll, but President Eisenhower has assigned three government artists to bring his scrapbooks up to date.

They are Charles Barnes, borrowed from the Atomic Energy Commission; Robert Schulman, on loan from the Army Comptroller's office; and Nino Belfiore, borrowed from the Army Engineers.

The three artists went through seven scrapbooks, pasting in all Ike's documents since he was a second lieutenant and drawing artistic frames around them.

Of course, most taxpayers won't begrudge like the services of government artists to lay out his fancy scrapbooks, but in these days of economy, congressional economizers don't like it. They point out that the President has the advantage of being able to borrow employees from any government agency without charging it against the White House budget.

Stifling National Guard

It didn't hit the headlines, but there was a lot of griping among the governors when they gathered in Washington the other day for a report on the nation's problems. They were concerned over a secret proposal to stifle the National Guard.

The matter came up when Undersecretary of Defense Roger Kyes appeared before the governors and was challenged by Governor William Marland of West Virginia regarding a secret memo circulated inside the Defense Department which would prevent National Guard units from enlisting 18-year-old youngsters.

"This would kill the National Guard," Governor Marland protested.

Governor Lausche of Ohio, Governor Kennon of Louisiana, and Governor Clement of Tennessee were the most vigorous in backing him up.

Deputy Secretary Kyes tried to pacify the governors, said that the plan to stifle the National Guard was only a proposal. The Defense Department, he said, was still studying it.

Secret Memo

Meanwhile, this column can reveal that Dr. John A. Hannah, who replaced Anna Rosenberg as the Defense Department's manpower boss, has drafted a confidential memo which he sent to the Army, Navy and Air Force, aimed at curtailing the National Guard.

"Sizeable numbers of draft-eligible young men are now being deferred from the draft by virtue of enlisting in a National Guard unit before attaining the age of 18 years and six months," he explained. "This is authorized under the Universal Military Training and Service Act, following a proclamation by the governor of a state to the effect that his state units cannot be maintained by enlistments of personnel exempt from induction."

"If the secretary of Defense announces a determination that trained personnel are available to enable the National Guard to maintain authorized strength, enlistment in a National Guard unit will no longer be ground for deferment," Dr. Hannah continued. "My office is of the opinion that the secretary of Defense should now make the determination."

Hannah pointed out in his confidential memo that "of the two million trained men returned to civilian life, most will have had at least two years of active duty, and many will have served in Korea. The majority of the 640,000 inductees will have a ready-reserve obligation under the terms of the Universal Military Training and Service Act. They can perform this obligation by joining the National Guard."

He estimated that both ground and air units of the National Guard would need a maximum of 210,000 men during the next 18 months, and suggested that they be drawn from the pool of veterans who are still subject to call in the reserves. Actual fact, however, is that though the National Guard has made an intense effort to recruit these obligated reservists, less than four per cent of those recruit-

Matter Of Fact

Sales Tax Ahead?

WASHINGTON Before the autumn, the Eisenhower administration has got to make one of the most uncomfortable political choices in recent history. Boiled down to its essentials, the choice is between a sound national policy plus some form of national sales tax, or a wholly unsound policy and no sales tax.

It is an open secret that various forms of sales tax are therefore being considered, as is inevitable and entirely proper in the circumstances. And in view of the known character and courage of Secretary of the Treasury George Humphrey, it is a fair bet that the Treasury, at least, will end by advising the President to take the political risk of crossing this particular Rubicon.

There are three reasons why such a grave political risk must now be weighed and perhaps accepted.

First, the budget is not now in balance. And on present prospects, it will be even further from being balanced next year. If all the President's tax recommendations are followed by the Congress, the deficit in the cash budget for the 1954 fiscal year will be $2.8 billion. In the next fiscal year, the full effects will be felt of the expiration of the excess profits tax and the extra 11 per cent personal income tax. With other tax income and national expenditures remaining at the same level, the deficit for the 1955 fiscal year will then be above $6 billion.

Way To Catastrophe

Second, the leaders of the administration are increasingly recognizing that in the really critical budgetary area—the defense program—there are great gaps that cannot be covered without additional expenditures. The problem of America's lack of air defense cannot be ducked forever. Neither can the problem of our declining air-atomic striking power. The cost of solving these problems will more than counter-balance any savings that may be made elsewhere.

Third, every other source of revenue except the various forms of national sales tax has already been tapped up to and beyond the safe limits. Raising personal or corporate income taxes, in particular, will inevitably end by inhibiting enterprise, lowering productivity, and thus killing the goose that lays the golden eggs.

There is no known way to get around, or under, or over, this combination of facts. The defense program may be sacrificed, of course. But in that case it will not be very many years before this country enters a new situation. On the one hand, the United States will be nakedly exposed to air-atomic destruction by the Soviets; while on the other hand, America's power of air-atomic retaliation will be largely impaired. Allowing this new situation to arise is quite plainly the shortest way to total catastrophe, as the National Security Council is increasingly tending to recognize.

Equally of course, the administration's aim of a balanced budget can also be sacrificed. But the President, Secretary Humphrey and Budget Director Joseph Dodge are all adamant against further improvisation.

France's Position Cited

Washington County Urged To Support Canal Parkway

The advantages to Western Maryland of the C&O Canal Parkway between Cumberland and Hancock was the subject of an address last week by Francis A. Kenney, manager of the Cumberland headquarters of the Maryland Department of Employment Security, before the Lions Club of Williamsport, Washington County. Kenney called attention to the fact that a 23-mile section of the canal between Washington and Seneca was restored by the National Park Service and is now used as a recreational waterway.

"The river route between Cumberland and Hancock," said Kenney, "is variously estimated from 50 to 60 miles, but at present the exact location is not known. In some of the areas the meanderings of the Potomac make it desirable to cut across which will tend to shorten the road. These cut-off places will be developed as recreational areas."

"All the safety factors necessary for modern driving," the Cumberlander emphasized, "will characterize the Canal Parkway: limited access, wide visibility with the river on one side, an imperceptible grade and wide curves where necessary with magnificent views of the Potomac Valley."

Kenney reviewed the economic, health and national defense aspects of the proposed parkway and its value in establishing closer relations between the people of Allegheny and Garrett counties and Marylanders east of Hancock.

Summer Band School Being Planned Here

The Board of Education will sponsor a summer band school starting June 15 and continue until June 26. Classes will be held from 9 a. m. to 11:30 a. m. at Pennsylvania Avenue School daily except Saturday and Sunday.

More Samples Are Taken In Search For Germanium

The latest report on the testing of coal seams in this region for possible germanium deposits has been released by Frank Powers, director of the State Bureau of Mines at Westport.

Powers said four new samples have been requested by the Pennsylvania Coal and Coke Company for further tests. Germanium is a rare metal which is being used in electronic devices and is worth at least $300 per pound.

Traces of the germanium were first found last Fall in Allegany County mines of the Georges Creek section. At that time the Mines Bureau pointed out that even in the event large amounts would be found the process of recovering the rare metal would be expensive.

Since the first announcement of the use of germanium in making electronic devices there has developed the fact that smokestacks of some industrial plants contain traces of germanium.

These plants are ones which use coal with the original germanium. The combustion of the coal results in the fly-ash in the stacks leaving deposits of the mineral.

Although no announcement has been made, it is believed that area industrial plants using coal as a source of heat and power have been checking into the germanium possibilities.

Found In Freeport Seam Samples which have been gathered and sent in for analysis are the Freeport and Clarion seams in the Vindex area of Garrett County and the Freeport seam from this county.

Powers said the Pennsylvania firm which is underwriting the analysis of coal samples from all parts of the country has been overwhelmed by shipments. This has slowed down the report of samples sent from this area last Fall.

Germanium, whitish gray metal, can be used in making electronic devices which will do the work of radio and television tubes for a longer period of time without replacement. They take up only a fraction of the space of tubes now in use. The metal is used in part of the hearing-aid manufactured by a number of firms. The devices are smaller than ones formerly used.

Washington County Urged To Support Canal Parkway

The advantages to Western Maryland of the C&O Canal Parkway between Cumberland and Hancock was the subject of an address last week by Francis A. Kenney, manager of the Cumberland headquarters of the Maryland Department of Employment Security, before the Lions Club of Williamsport, Washington County.

Kenney called attention to the fact that a 23-mile section of the canal between Washington and Seneca was restored by the National Park Service and is now used as a recreational waterway.

"The river route between Cumberland and Hancock," said Kenney, "is variously estimated from 50 to 60 miles, but at present the exact location is not known. In some of the areas the meanderings of the Potomac make it desirable to cut across which will tend to shorten the road. These cut-off places will be developed as recreational areas."

"All the safety factors necessary for modern driving," the Cumberlander emphasized, "will characterize the Canal Parkway: limited access, wide visibility with the river on one side, an imperceptible grade and wide curves where necessary with magnificent views of the Potomac Valley."

Kenney reviewed the economic, health and national defense aspects of the proposed parkway and its value in establishing closer relations between the people of Allegheny and Garrett counties and Marylanders east of Hancock.

Brooklyn Extends Win Streak To 10 Games

Dodgers Cop Twin Victory Over Pirates

Double Triumph, 4-1 And 4-3 Put Bums In First

BROOKLYN, May 31 (AP) — The blazing Brooklyn Dodgers roared back into the National League lead today as they took both ends of a doubleheader from Pittsburgh, 4-3 and 4-1, and stretched their winning streak to 10 straight victories.

The second game was called after the Pirates batted in the seventh on account of darkness. The double setback dropped Pittsburgh into the National League cellar.

Bob Milliken, 26-year-old right-hander who was with Montreal when he entered service in 1950, pitched the abbreviated nightcap, yielding only two hits. He had a shutout until the seventh when George Metkovich tripled and scored a moment later for the Bucs' lone run. He did not walk a batter and struck out seven.

Vukovich Gets Record $89,496 For "500" Win

INDIANAPOLIS, May 31 (AP) — Bill Vukovich collected a record-breaking $89,496 prize Sunday night for literally sweating out a sweltering 500 miles to win the Memorial Day auto race.

It was by far the biggest slice from the Indianapolis Motor Speedway's record purse of $246,300, which topped by $16,200 the melon divided up last year.

The quiet, determined race veteran from Fresno, Calif., won $25,884.84 more than the $63,612.12 Lee Wallard won in 1951, the record take until now. It was $27,753.78 more than Troy Ruttman won last year, when Vukovich's car broke down with scarcely 25 miles to go.

Romney's Rockets, bouncing back after having two victories taken away from them by a league ruling on an ineligible player, scored a 2-0 triumph over Moorefield's American Legion nine yesterday at Romney.

Because a previous Romney victory over Moorefield was ruled a defeat by the league in the ineligible player case this marked Moorefield's first loss in the South Branch Valley League.

Allen Kenny, returning from Marshall College, pitched his first game for the Rockets, setting Moorefield down with four hits as he bested Randall Raines.

A walk and three singles in the second inning provided the only runs of the game for Romney.

Saturday Romney defeated Lost City as Frye pitched seven hit ball to defeat F. Kaping. In other Saturday games Petersburg topped Franklin, 6-5, and Moorefield walloped Wardensville, 12-1.

Lost City also benefited by the ruling against Romney, having a previous loss to the Rockets changed to a victory.

In the only other game reported yesterday, Petersburg handed Wardensville a 10-6 shellacking at Moorefield. Norris Dolly went all the way for Petersburg, surviving a five-run Wardensville rally in the third inning.

Dolly also paced Petersburg at the plate with three hits including a double with the bases loaded as the victors came up with five runs in the sixth.

Keeping Up With Hollywood by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, May 31—(INS)—In less than a week, when she reaches Hollywood, you'll hear more about Virginia Leith, Los Angeles-born girl, New York model, and TV actress. Virginia has been signed by Darryl Zanuck for the lead opposite Tyrone Power in "King Of The Khyber Rifles."

When I tell you this girl, unknown to Hollywood, gets this big role in these times when even established actresses go begging for new deals, you'll know she must be something very special.

Agent Lou Irwin, who obtained a seven-year contract for her with Zanuck, says she'll be another Ava Gardner. No less enthusiastic is Darryl Zanuck, who believes he has a new star.

When Vittorio Gassman returns to Rome in November, Shelley Winters goes with him. Vittorio says, "Shelley and I have agreed to no more long separations. When I go back to Rome to fulfill the contract I made, including a repeat of 'Hamlet', Shelley goes with me."

I was especially interested that early in 1954 when Vittorio returns to New York with the "Hamlet" company, his mother, Louisa Gassman, 58, will be in the cast. She's a well known Italian actress. With a large Italian population in New York this should be a stand-out.

The Betty Grable contract at 20th Century-Fox sounds more complicated to me than some of the rulings of the United Nations.

As it was explained, Betty's 12-

year contract with 20th is up in July, but as long as she is on suspension it continues automatically. When and if she reports to work she will be told that she has to appear in "The Pleasure Is All Mine" at Columbia. This is because 20th is liable to a lawsuit with Columbia if she refuses to make the picture. 20th promised Betty and failed to deliver her.

I still believe Betty will check in at Columbia if she is given a leading man she believes is strong enough to support her.

I am getting many letters from Father Thomas English Parishoners, as well as other people in Pomona, speaking of the splendid show some of my motion picture friends put on for St. Joseph's school, which has a playground open to children of all faiths.

Marie Wilson, bless her, passed the hat and collected a sizeable amount. Ann Blyth, Patricia Morrison, Jimmy McHugh and his singing stars sang; Donald O'Connor danced and M.C.'ed and endeared himself to everyone; Jeanne Crain and Maureen O'Sullivan Farrow made charming speeches. And, we're all grateful to the Tanner Bus Company for donating the bus and to the Brown Derby for donating sandwiches and soft drinks. Over $14,000 was cleared for this worthy cause.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Clark Gable's divorce from Lady Sylvia became final Wednesday, but no one paid any attention since neither the lady nor Gable are in town.

Couldn't be more surprised. Jacqueline Duval has been secretly divorced from her husband, David Sher, since May 11. She obtained an interlocutory decree.

John Ford enters a hospital soon for an eye operation. Trouble started on the "Mogambo" picture in Africa.

The I-am-growing-older-department: Natalie Woods, yesterday a child, had her first grown up date with Actor Tom Irish. They were at Fairchild's Restaurant.

It was Bill Bowers who was with Teresa Wright at the Plymouth House. Alexis Smith was with Dr. Nathan Rickles—but they were all in the same party.

Alan Young is staying away from his home on account of his 4-year-old son has mumps and Alan never had them.

Attress Jean Willes and Jerry Cowhig, football star, have had a message from the stork, with the date given as next February.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

DANGER TO BE AVOIDED

ONE of the most disheartening things that can happen to a declarer in a suit contract is having the defenders beat him by means of one or more defensive ruffs. The risk of that danger is greatest when the declarer's side has two well-fitting suits, consequently so many cards in a side suit that there is grave possibility one defender may be short in it. That risk is obviously greater when you pick as trump the suit with the smaller total number of cards, leaving the one with the larger number on the side.

Since these players did not consider 4-No Trumps a Blackwood convention call unless one partner had previously supported his partner's suit, that bid by South was in its natural meaning. So then was North's 5-Spades, his third bid of the suit to indicate six-card length. South then quite properly went to 6-Spades. It was unfortunate for his side, however.

East led the diamond J to the A. When West saw the Q fall from North's hand, he reckoned it was surely a singleton and therefore North must have quite a bunch of clubs, especially since North did not jump in his spades until he heard South's club bid.

So West felt there might be a chance of a club ruff by his partner. He was right, as East trumped the return of the club 2 to beat the contract.

Whose fault was that? Undoubtedly North's. He could count on South for four clubs from his partner's bid of the suit, and had six in his own hand. So there were only three in the opponents' holdings, which might well be bunched in one hand. If North had bid 6-Clubs after the 4-No Trumps, it would have been airtight. Or South, if he preferred to do so, could have shifted into 6-No Trumps, also a safe contract.

FUNNIEST OF THE YEAR

Keeping Up With Hollywood by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, May 31—(INS)—In less than a week, when she reaches Hollywood, you'll hear more about Virginia Leith, Los Angeles-born girl, New York model, and TV actress. Virginia has been signed by Darryl Zanuck for the lead opposite Tyrone Power in "King Of The Khyber Rifles."

When I tell you this girl, unknown to Hollywood, gets this big role in these times when even established actresses go begging for new deals, you'll know she must be something very special.

Agent Lou Irwin, who obtained a seven-year contract for her with Zanuck, says she'll be another Ava Gardner. No less enthusiastic is Darryl Zanuck, who believes he has a new star.

When Vittorio Gassman returns to Rome in November, Shelley Winters goes with him. Vittorio says, "Shelley and I have agreed no more long separations. When I go back to Rome to fulfill the contract I made, including a repeat of 'Hamlet', Shelley goes with me."

I was especially interested that early in 1934 when Vittorio returns to New York with the "Hamlet" company, his mother, Louisa Gassman, 58, will be in the cast. She's a well known Italian actress. With a large Italian population in New York this should be a stand-out.

The Betty Grable contract at 20th Century-Fox sounds more complicated to me than some of the rulings of the United Nations. As it was explained, Betty's 12-

year contract with 20th is up in July, but as long as she is on suspension it continues automatically. When and if she reports to work she will be told that she has to appear in "The Pleasure Is All Mine" at Columbia. This is because 20th is liable to a lawsuit with Columbia if she refuses to make the picture. 20th promised Betty and failed to deliver her.

I still believe Betty will check in at Columbia if she is given a leading man she believes is strong enough to support her.

I am getting many letters from Father Thomas English Parishoners, as well as other people in Pomona, speaking of the splendid show some of my motion picture friends put on for St. Joseph's school, which has a playground open to children of all faiths.

Marie Wilson, bless her, passed the hat and collected a sizeable amount. A Sharp Tongue Goes Network

Gerald Johnson, one of the sharpest-tongued critics of our politics and our mores, whose efforts have so far been confined to Baltimore, goes network tomorrow night on ABC-TV at 8:45 p. m. EDT. I advise you all to listen.

He is one of the most pungent, thoughtful and knowledgeable commentators in America today.

"And he doesn't pull any punches. As a sample of his style, I append a few paragraphs he spoke recently on the subject of Owen Lattimore:

"The friends of naturally are pleased that four of the seven charges against him have been thrown out by the court, but that isn't the most important thing in this decision. The important thing is the court's reminder that if there is any fixed star in our constitutional constellation, it is that no official, high or petty, can prescribe what shall be orthodox in politics, nationalism, religion or other matter of opinion. "Judge Youngdahl was referring to the first count in the indictment, which charged that Mr. Lattimore lied when he denied that he sympathized with communism or consciously endeavored to advance its interests. Lattimore was indicted because in the opinion of certain members of Congress he lied when he expressed the opinion that he did not sympathize with communism. Thus it became a matter of one opinion against another opinion; and a third party, confronted with two opinions, can only guess which is a sincere one.

"The judge was not willing to send a man to trial on a charge that the jury could decide only by conjecture; the only test of sincerity is to make one opinion orthodox, in this case the opinion of members of Congress; but this would amount to thought control, and the court will have none of it. "This is the most reassuring judicial decision we have had in many a day."

Economy, I've always felt, is even more the mother of invention than necessity. Just now one of the most economical shows around is "Monodrama," which you'll find on Dumont, a network which doesn't believe in cluttering up the stage with expensive actors.

In "Monodrama," a lone actor or actress acts out a story against a bare stage, taking a working week to get it across. (11:15 p. m. EDT Mon. through Fri.) I confess that I have yet to see all five episodes of any one story and this, I feel, is a weakness the show will have to contend with in others. Lots of people aren't home every night in the week.

With a whole, generally bare stage to fill and no one around to help out, the actors' performance range from very good to very bad, sometimes all in the space of a minute. Many an actor has prayed to have a stage all to himself—but once an actor gets it, he is not altogether happy with it. Much of the stories is pure narration, the actor talking straight to the camera like a man to his analyst, though conceivably more coherently.

From time to time, non-existent other actors, are suggested and then you get this kind of dialogue: "I beg your pardon, sir. Under arrest? I don't understand, sir. What, sir, are the charges against me? I am to stand trial for treason!" There is a good deal of this "What, sir" or rephrase-type dialogue, much of it rather awkward.

At its best, "Monodrama" has a simplicity and clarity and dramatic (as opposed to financial) economy which is commendable. But the darn thing gets monotonous after a while and I can't quite see myself sitting through a five-episode story—even if I were home. I'm afraid I prefer the old style drama with lots of actors or, anyway, at least two.

Speaking of actors, Jackie Gleason, who was an actor before he turned comedian, which is where money is, turned square again for a "Studio One" production of a play called "The Laugh Maker." The part called for him to play an insufferably egotistic comedian, which is tantamount to asking him to play himself. He did this with remarkable fidelity and enormous energy, berating his writers (a wonderful scene where he watches himself on kinescope), breaking up romances and generally behaving like a heel with great conviction.

However, the denouement, which was pure corn, in which he is revealed as a simple, good-hearted and basically insecure guy, he carried off with an authority that few other actors could match. And the finish, in which he played his old character "The Poor Soul," was—just great. I'm afraid he has as much talent as anyone around.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it: AXYDLBAAXR is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's. X for two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Webb Calls For Peace With Honor

Md. VFW Commander Gives Memorial Day Talk At Friendsville

Frank H. Webb, state commander of the VFW, yesterday paid tribute to the American fighting men who gave their lives for the cause of freedom and lambasted the God-denying hordes of Communism now bent on world domination.

Webb delivered his six-page address at a memorial service held yesterday by Memorial Post 8409, Veterans of Foreign Wars, at the soldiers' honor roll plaque in the town square of Friendsville. Approximately 500 persons attended.

Webb said, "Not long after the cessation of hostilities in the war between the states, May 30 was designated as a day of memorial for those who fell in battle. But in order that our historic sacrifices may be viewed in true perspective, I believe that we should think of Memorial Day as dating back a century and three-quarters ago to those gallant patriots, who gave their lives that our republic could be set up among the nations of the world.

"Living as we do today as citizens of the world's leading nation, it is fitting indeed, that we recognize the debt to those men of the revolution, who cast all they had — their fortunes, their very lives — into the crucible of war in order that the principles of ordered and established republicanism be established in accordance with the tenets of the founding fathers."

"... The history of this nation records with arresting solemnity the human cost of that precious freedom which is ours by right of that sacrifice — Concord, Valley Forge and Yorktown, Antietam and Gettysburg, San Juan and Santiago, Chateau Thierry and the Meuse Argonne, Corrigidor and Guadalcanal, Normandy and Malmeldy — all are tragic but glorious milestones in American history."

"Now," Webb continued, "yet another name has been added to the list of sacrificial altars where American arms have paid the supreme price that our way of life might be permitted to continue as our founding fathers conceived it should be."

"That name is Korea, a distant Asiatic peninsula off the coast of Japan, little known to most of us three short years ago and little known to these gallant Americans who have laid down their lives for that freedom which traditionally is ours."

"Today we become more aware of the fact that the Korean battlefield is one of the world's important outposts of freedom. It is the shell torn sector where the forces of embattled democracy have been required to make life and death stand against communist aggression."

"... The veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States as an organization of overseas wartime service men is dedicated to the principle of peace, but not peace at any price."

"We stand for 'Peace with Honor.' We know that this is the only ideal which would be acceptable to our war dead. We believe it is the only kind of peace free men deserve."

In looking to the future Webb pointed out, "In our life and death struggle against the sinister menace of further Communist aggression, physical and moral stamina of superlative and consistent quality is required. It is required of us now in greater degree than at any time in our national history. This demand is universal. It applies to all of our citizens."

"We must have faith in the greatness of our country and be prepared to fight against those who would crush beneath the relentless heel of communist aggression all that it stands for. We must keep in mind the fact that America still offers unlimited opportunities so that we may be ready to sacrifice this today, for a better tomorrow."

"... Our honored war dead neither ask nor need payment for their sacrifice. They only ask that we use, enjoy, cherish and defend the freedom bought with their blood. They ask only that we be the trustees of freedom. We have the solemn obligation to defend those sacred inherited freedoms, so that we may bequeath them to future generations of Americans."

Yesterday's memorial service followed a parade in Friendsville. Rev. Alonzo Pike, pastor of Accident Church, gave the invocation, and Merle Flantz, principal of Friendsville Elementary School, was master of ceremonies.

VFW officers participating in the service were Fred Selby, post commander; Charles Ross, district commander; John Williams, senior vice commander; Harry Sausman, junior vice commander; Clyde Van Sickle, officer - of - the - day, and Thomas Sines, chaplain.

Music for the event in charge of James W. Lininger and his committee, was provided by Northern High School Band, Accident, and Mt. City Band, Oakland.

Enrollments Low For Trade School Night Sessions

Enrollments for the part-time auto mechanics and machine shop courses which will be offered by the Allegany Trade School beginning today have been coming in slowly, according to Ira Northcraft, school registrar.

Only eight men who have been in the armed services since the outbreak of fighting in Korea in June, 1950, have enrolled to date.

Northcraft said that there should be at least 15 in each course to justify their operation. The part-time sessions will be held from 6 until 9 p. m. Monday through Friday.

Veterans can work and still attend the classes at night.

Board Refuses License To Area Fire Company

Meeting at the Court House Friday afternoon to be sworn in for new terms, the three members of the Allegany County Board of License Commissioners signed an opinion refusing a Class D beer license to Bowman's Addition Volunteer Fire Company, Inc.

The board, in its opinion, questions the wisdom of indiscriminate issuance of licenses to sell intoxicating liquors to fire departments.

50 Attend Ceremony

About 50 persons, including State Senator Robert B. Kimble and Associate Judge George Henderson, were on hand as Joseph E. Boden, clerk of Circuit Court, administered the oath of office. The board is being reconstituted, effective today under Senate Bill 276 passed at the last session of the General Assembly.

Stanley O. Hamilton, received a six-year appointment, Walter C. Capper, board chairman, is starting on a new four-year term, and James E. Kenny will serve for two years.

Rev. Elva C. Brotemarkle and nine other persons had signed a remonstrance opposing the renewal of the beer license for the Bowman's Addition firemen on the grounds that disturbances had existed in and around the fire hall, running into early morning hours and that there was catering to teenagers and illegal sale of intoxicants.

"Three of the remonstrants, Rev. Elva C. Brotemarkle, Herman Greise and Charles A. Roy, testified," the opinion states. "Their combined testimony is to the effect that prior to the last of December, 1952, there was much disturbance including the presence of minors at the hall, and there has been considerable such disturbance until about the middle of February. The testimony leads us to believe, beyond question, that whisky was sold almost continuously until the latter part of December; that minors frequented the place and either bought beer in the place or procured it in some manner and consumed it just outside; that these minors became intoxicated and rude and on at least one occasion entered the premises against the protest of the doorkeeper and created disturbance in the premises."

Improved Since February

"It appears there has been some improvement in conditions since February, and that since the expiration of the license on April 30 the whole neighborhood has been quiet."

"The testimony on behalf of the licensee does not squarely contradict the testimony as to disturbances in the place, sale of liquor, presence of teenagers etc., but the licensee loudly contend that the improvement brought about in the last two or three months entitles them to a license."

"We cannot agree with this contention. The disturbances, disorder and violations of the liquor law continued for months without any of the members complaining to this board or reporting same to the State's Attorney. This was their plain duty if they wished to improve conditions."

"We feel that if a license is now issued these conditions will not show any permanent improvement. This Board will not permit such long and continuous disorder and violations of the liquor law to exist without punishment. These conditions had become a veritable nuisance to the good people living in this neighborhood. The conduct of those in charge of this fire hall has demonstrated that at least for some time to come they're unfit to be given the license which they request. It is questionable whether a license to sell intoxicating liquors should be issued indiscriminately to fire departments. Certainly when intoxicants are consumed to excess, the ability of fire fighters to act in an emergency is greatly reduced," the board concludes.

Flower Arranging Contest Postponed

Mrs. George Henderson, chairman of the garden group of the Woman's Civic Club, last night announced the postponement of the flower arrangement contest and exhibition scheduled for June 4 at Emmanuel Episcopal Church parish house.

Mrs. Henderson said the number of entries is not sufficient to justify the expense and work involved in organizing a show of this kind.

It is hoped that a similar contest can be arranged at some later date, Mrs. Henderson added.

Corriganville Home Is Damaged By Fire

The Corriganville Volunteer Fire Company was called to the home of Clayton Robison, Corriganville, yesterday at 3:30 p. m. when fire broke out in the living room of the home.

Firemen said damage from the blaze was slight. The cause of the fire was not known, according to Fire Chief H. W. Martz and Assistant Chief O. H. Teiger.

High Water, Power Failure Follow Storm

Firemen And Utility Workers See Action As Rains Persist

As the weatherman went on an unpredictable rampage over the weekend much property damage was caused by the torrential downpours of rain and the hail and electrical storms.

Firemen, public utility workers, police and state road workers were called into action as the fury of the storms spread over the general area.

Volunteer firemen from Bowman's Addition were called out at 1:30 a.m. yesterday to the service station of Howard B. Brokey to pump out the cellar of the building filled by run off water.

Also at the scene were firemen from Baltimore Pike and Bedford Road. After the cellar had been pumped out the firemen were summoned a second time. Later as Dry Run went on a rampage, firemen pumped out cellars of six homes in that vicinity and much damage was done to furnaces, washers and heating systems.

Crest Is Reached

The firemen were out until about 9 a.m. yesterday. The auxiliary unit of Bowman's Addition served breakfast for the Bedford Road volunteers and Bowman's Addition. Richard Rank, chief of the Bowman's Addition fire company said the men were kept on the go throughout the night.

The crest of the Potomac River at Wiley Ford was reached yesterday at 11:15 a.m. according to Robert R. Golden, superintendent of Constitution Park, with a measurement of 11.5 feet. Flood stage is about 17 feet.

After one o'clock yesterday afternoon Golden added, the River began falling. Evitt's Creek was reported over the bank along the Williams Road sector with crops in the hollow suffering heavy damage. Golden said that approximately three inches of rain was dumped in the immediate area during the intermittent downpours.

Flood Work Damaged

Heavy damage was noted at the Cumberland-Ridgeley Flood Control project at Wills Creek in the Narrows. Some of the equipment of the Albrecht Company of Chicago, contractor, was submerged under water and a spokesman for the project described it as "murder."

A delay of about two weeks is expected in the work as temporary barricades and coffer dams were washed out. The other project at the industrial dam site between Cumberland and Ridgeley was not affected quite as much, the spokesman added.

In that locale the heavy equipment was on higher ground but normal working conditions are not expected for a couple days.

Power Fails

The Potomac Edison company had its headaches too during the course of the several storms. One of the worst power failures occurred when a phase of a feeder line on West Side went out around 10 p. m., and power was restored by 10:30 p. m.

Crews were out all night working in the immediate area trying to get service back to normal. The usual trouble caused by heavy rainstorms was noted, according to a spokesman. A bolt of lightning hit a pole on Patterson Avenue and shorted some of the wiring.

Propionic, Butyric Acids Production Start By Celanese

Celanese Corporation of America has begun large scale production of both propionic acid and butyric acid for sale to general industry. Richard W. Kixmiller, general manager of the Chemical Division of the company, announced. Output is coming from the newly constructed special products unit at the Pampa, Texas, plant.

Celanese production of these chemicals is the result of an entirely new process developed by the Chemical Division's research laboratories. This process involves a one-step oxidation of natural gas components of acetic, propionic and butyric acids and other chemicals yet to be announced, and is the first of its kind.

Propionic and butyric acid offer useful modifications of cellulose plastics. Other uses of these acids are in surface coatings, lacquers, flavors and pharmaceuticals.

Weather

Yesterday was a mixture of rain, drizzle and hail with lightning and thunder piercing dark clouds overhead. The Weather Bureau says today will be mostly cloudy and somewhat warmer. Official temperature yesterday ranged from a high of 55 to a low of 52 degrees according to Constitution Park weather station. At 9 p. m. mercury stood at 52, while humidity at 6 p. m. was a wet 94 per cent. Rainfall amounted to 2.49 inches.

About 50 persons, including State Senator Robert B. Kimble and Associate Judge George Henderson, were on hand as Joseph E. Boden, clerk of Circuit Court, administered the oath of office. The board is being reconstituted, effective today under Senate Bill 276 passed at the last session of the General Assembly.

Stanley O. Hamilton, received a six-year appointment, Walter C. Capper, board chairman, is starting on a new four-year term, and James E. Kenny will serve for two years.

Rev. Elva C. Brotemarkle and nine other persons had signed a remonstrance opposing the renewal of the beer license for the Bowman's Addition firemen on the grounds that disturbances had existed in and around the fire hall, running into early morning hours and that there was catering to teenagers and illegal sale of intoxicants.

"Three of the remonstrants, Rev. Elva C. Brotemarkle, Herman Greise and Charles A. Roy, testified," the opinion states. "Their combined testimony is to the effect that prior to the last of December, 1952, there was much disturbance including the presence of minors at the hall, and there has been considerable such disturbance until about the middle of February. The testimony leads us to believe, beyond question, that whisky was sold almost continuously until the latter part of December; that minors frequented the place and either bought beer in the place or procured it in some manner and consumed it just outside; that these minors became intoxicated and rude and on at least one occasion entered the premises against the protest of the doorkeeper and created disturbance in the premises."

Improved Since February

"It appears there has been some improvement in conditions since February, and that since the expiration of the license on April 30 the whole neighborhood has been quiet."

"The testimony on behalf of the licensee does not squarely contradict the testimony as to disturbances in the place, sale of liquor, presence of teenagers etc., but the licensee loudly contend that the improvement brought about in the last two or three months entitles them to a license."

"We cannot agree with this contention. The disturbances, disorder and violations of the liquor law continued for months without any of the members complaining to this board or reporting same to the State's Attorney. This was their plain duty if they wished to improve conditions."

"We feel that if a license is now issued these conditions will not show any permanent improvement. This Board will not permit such long and continuous disorder and violations of the liquor law to exist without punishment. These conditions had become a veritable nuisance to the good people living in this neighborhood. The conduct of those in charge of this fire hall has demonstrated that at least for some time to come they're unfit to be given the license which they request. It is questionable whether a license to sell intoxicating liquors should be issued indiscriminately to fire departments. Certainly when intoxicants are consumed to excess, the ability of fire fighters to act in an emergency is greatly reduced," the board concludes.

Flower Arranging Contest Postponed

Mrs. George Henderson, chairman of the garden group of the Woman's Civic Club, last night announced the postponement of the flower arrangement contest and exhibition scheduled for June 4 at Emmanuel Episcopal Church parish house.

Mrs. Henderson said the number of entries is not sufficient to justify the expense and work involved in organizing a show of this kind.

It is hoped that a similar contest can be arranged at some later date, Mrs. Henderson added.

Corriganville Home Is Damaged By Fire

The Corriganville Volunteer Fire Company was called to the home of Clayton Robinson, Corriganville, yesterday at 3:30 p. m. when a fire broke out in the living room of the home.

Firemen said damage from the blaze was slight. The cause of the fire was not known, according to Fire Chief H. W. Martz and Assistant Chief O. H. Teiger.

High Water, Power Failure Follow Storm

Firemen And Utility Workers See Action As Rains Persist

As the weatherman went on an unpredictable rampage over the weekend much property damage was caused by the torrential downpours of rain and the hail and electrical storms.

Firemen, public utility workers, police and state road workers were called into action as the fury of the storms spread over the general area.

Volunteer firemen from Bowman's Addition were called out at 1:30 a.m. yesterday to the service station of Howard B. Brokey to pump out the cellar of the building filled by run off water.

Also at the scene were firemen from Baltimore Pike and Bedford Road. After the cellar had been pumped out the firemen were summoned a second time. Later as Dry Run went on a rampage, firemen pumped out cellars of six homes in that vicinity and much damage was done to furnaces, washers and heating systems.

Crest Is Reached

The firemen were out until about 9 a.m. yesterday. The auxiliary unit of Bowman's Addition served breakfast for the Bedford Road volunteers and Bowman's Addition. Richard Rank, chief of the Bowman's Addition fire company said the men were kept on the go throughout the night.

The crest of the Potomac River at Wiley Ford was reached yesterday at 11:15 a.m. according to Robert R. Golden, superintendent of Constitution Park, with a measurement of 11.5 feet. Flood stage is about 17 feet.

After an o'clock yesterday afternoon Golden added, the River began falling. Elvitt's Creek was reported over the bank along the Williams Road suffering with crops in the hollow suffering heavy damage. Golden said that approximately three inches of rain was dumped in the immediate area during the intermittent downpours.

Flood Work Damaged

Heavy damage was noted at the Cumberland-Ridgely Flood Control project at Wills Creek in the Narrows. Some of the equipment of the Albright Company of Chicago, contractor, was submerged under water and a spokesman for the project described it as "murder."

A delay of about two weeks is expected in the work as temporary barricades and coffer dams were washed out. The other project at the industrial dam site between Cumberland and Ridgely was not affected quite as much, the spokesman added.

In that locale the heavy equipment was on higher ground but normal working conditions are not expected for a couple days.

Power Falls

The Potomac Edison company had its headaches too during the course of the several storms. One of the worst power failures occurred when a phase of a feeder line on West Side went out around 10 p. m., and power was restored by 10:30 p. m.

Crews were out all night working in the immediate area trying to get service back to normal. The usual trouble caused by heavy rainstorms was noted, according to a spokesman. A bolt of lightning hit a pole on Patterson Avenue and shorted some of the wiring.

Propionic, Butyric Acids Production Start By Celanese

Celanese Corporation of America has begun large scale production of both propionic acid and butyric acid for sale to general industry, Richard W. Kixmiller, general manager of the Chemical Division of the company, announced. Output is coming from the newly constructed special products unit at the Pampa, Texas, plant.

Celanese production of these chemicals is the result of an entirely new process developed by the Chemical Division's research laboratories. This process involves a one-step oxidation of natural gas components of acetic, propionic and butyric acids and other chemicals yet to be announced, and is the first of its kind.

Propionic and butyric acid offer useful modifications of cellulose plastics. Other uses of these acids are in surface coatings, lacquers, flavors and pharmaceuticals.

Weather

Yesterday was a mixture of rain, drizzle and hail with lightning and thunder piercing dark clouds overhead. The Weather Bureau says today will be mostly cloudy and somewhat warmer. Official temperature yesterday ranged from a high of 55 to a low of 52 degrees according to Constitution Park weather station. At 9 p. m. mercury stood at 52, while humidity at 6 p. m. was a wet 94 per cent. Rainfall amounted to 2.49 inches.
